MCTODAY

Dear Alumni:

The first half of 1984 has been an exceptionally exciting time at Mary Washington. In addition to a highly successful homecoming and the largest graduation in the history of the College, the campus was also the scene of two special events—a visit by the Governor and General Assembly in January and a presidential inauguration in April. It was a great pleasure for me on these occasions to have the chance to meet so many alumni. For those who were not present, this issue of MWC Today contains accounts of these memorable events.

We were especially delighted to have Governor Robb and his staff as our guests during the Legislative Tour of the Fredericksburg area in January. The visit provided an unusual opportunity for the Governor and other high-ranking State officials to view Mary Washington College personally and to become better acquainted with the College's attributes, its goals, and its needs. We were gratified that the General Assembly in its budgetary appropriations subsequently provided the funds with which the College can address its highest priority needs, including, in particular, a ten percent increase in faculty salaries for each of the next two years.

It was a personal honor for me, as well as a collective honor for the institution, that Governor Robb saw fit to attend and participate in my inauguration as president. His remarks on that occasion revealed not only a thorough understanding of the purpose of higher education in general, but also a keen insight into the mission and the merits of Mary Washington College in particular. We are indeed grateful for Governor Robb's concern and support.

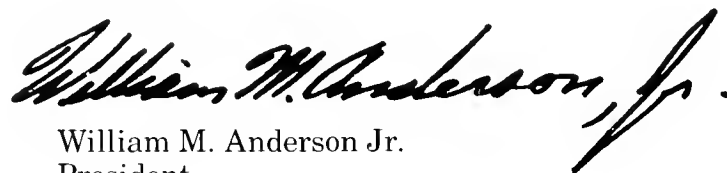

Throughout my first year as president, amidst all the extraordinary activities which have taken place, I have been continuously buoyed by the enthusiasm of our alumni. I was especially pleased by the decision of the Alumni Association this spring to honor Ann Palamar and Frances Armstrong, both of whom exemplify the very best qualities which this College endeavors to instill in all its students. The Alumni Association overall has never, to my knowledge, been stronger or more vigorous in its efforts to promote the welfare of the College—and for this I am most grateful.

We have a long and glorious tradition at Mary Washington College, a tradition in which every alumnus shares. But the challenge now belongs to each of us to build upon the excellence of the past to create an even more glorious future. The Board of Visitors shares with me the belief that the College is now ideally positioned to move aggressively and constructively into the future. This is a task which will require careful planning—and this planning is, in fact, already well underway. During the spring semester, I appointed a Comprehensive College Planning Committee, composed of faculty, administrators and students, to serve as an advisory body for the purpose of both short- and long-range planning on a continuing basis. I am confident that this group, along with the Alumni Association, will be a valuable source of advice as I work with the Board of Visitors in charting a prudent and productive course for the College.

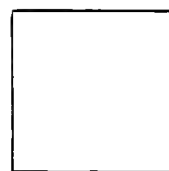

The coming year promises to be, like the past one, most exciting. Several developments have occurred in fact, quite recently which affect alumni and which already augur well for the future. These are the appointments of Mrs. Pamela C. Kearney as Director of Alumni Programs and Mr. Michael B. Dowdy as Vice President for College Relations. Both of these fine people understand and appreciate Mary Washington College—its values and its purpose—and are enthusiastic about the future of the institution. I am convinced that they will contribute significantly toward helping to achieve the goals of excellence to which we all aspire.

I very much appreciate the support and the expressions of good will which I have received from so many alumni during my first year in office, and I look forward to working with you toward the continued development of our College in the years ahead.

Sincerely,

BY PAULETTE S. WATSON

On April 7, 1984, in a colorful and dignified ceremony befitting the significance of the occasion, William M. Anderson Jr. was inaugurated as the sixth president of Mary Washington College. The inaugural ceremony was the central event in a weekend filled with a wide range of activities, all characterized by a sense of harmony and a spirit of good will.

The celebration began on Friday evening with a concert by the Army Blues Jazz Band in Dodd Auditorium. In introducing the band, Dr. George Van Sant, chairman of the Inauguration Committee, set the tone for the entire weekend when he proclaimed that the concert marked the beginning of "one of the most fun-filled, action-packed, solemn 29 hours in the history of Mary Washington College." Turning to Dr. Anderson, Van Sant proclaimed, "By 1 a.m. on Sunday morning, April the 8th, we will be staggering across the finish line—but, by golly, we will have inaugurated you!"

The inauguration on Saturday morning began with an academic procession led by Anna Mae Harris, marshal of the faculty. Resplendent in academic regalia, the procession moved through the chilly, gray morning into the warmth and lights of Dodd Auditorium. In addition to the presidential party, the procession included Mary Washington College faculty, faculty emeriti and Senior Class; delegates from numerous colleges and universities, learned societies and educational organizations, and state and local governments; and representatives of the Mary Washington College Alumni Association.

Presiding at the ceremony, Gail Fallon Neal '59, rector of the Board of Visitors, recognized the various dignitaries and special guests in attendance. Especially warm receptions greeted the introductions of Dr. Grellet C. Simpson, president of MWC from 1956-74, his wife Dorothy, and Corrine N. Woodard, widow of Dr. Prince B. Woodard, president of the College from 1974-82. Following the introductions, felicitations were presented to the president from the faculty, represented by Mary Ann T. Burns, vice president for academic affairs and dean; from the student body, represented by Daniel K. Steen, president of the Student Association; and from the Alumni, represented by Doris L. Whitfield, president of the Alumni Association.

A highlight of the ceremony was an address by Gov. Charles S. Robb, who was introduced with exuberant good humor by Inauguration Committee Chairman Van Sant, a long-time friend who served as Robb's commanding officer 24 years ago at Quantico Marine Corps Base. No one seemed more amused than the governor himself when Van Sant reminded the audience of Robb's forays onto the MWC campus while he was a Marine stationed at Quantico. "The first time I laid eyes on this man," Van Sant continued, "he was throwing men twice his size out of a rope circular ring on the ground. I cherish that memory because it is exactly the kind of thing he's been doing ever since!"

Gov. Robb began by proclaiming his belief that "Bill Anderson is the right man at the right time to develop the right kind of future for this great College." Evincing a keen appreciation for the College and placing his remarks within a perspective that was at once historical and personal, Robb said that he could think of no one "who would have taken greater pleasure in both the substantive meaning and the symbolic significance of Bill Anderson's inauguration than Prince Woodard. I am confident," the governor went on, "that his pride and satisfaction would have been complete in the knowledge that the man he admired so much and believed in so deeply would finish the work that he began by building upon the legacy of strength that he had created. In these ceremonies we now complete that transition from what Prince Woodard began to what Bill Anderson will carry on and finish: from the conception of this College as an institution with a unique mission in our system of higher education to the realization of the great contributions we may anticipate Mary Washington will make to the intellectual development and to the quality of life of this and every succeeding generation of Virginians."

Following musical selections presented by the Mary Washington College Chorus, under the direction of Assistant Professor Stephen J. Burton, Dr. Anderson was sworn in as president, with the Honorable Jere M. H. Willis Jr., judge of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit of Virginia, administering the oath of office. The investiture was completed by the Rector of the College, Gail Fallon Neal, who then formally presented the new president to the assembly.

In his inaugural address, Anderson emphasized his determination that the College continue in its devotion to the concept of excellence in liberal arts education. The achievement of such a goal, he pointed out, will be difficult, given the preparation of many students who enter college today. He was interrupted by applause and laughter when he characterized such students as "well acquainted with John Lennon, but not John Locke; who know Michael Jackson, but not Michaelangelo; who read the philosophy of Playboy, but not Plato." Nevertheless, Anderson promised, the College will persevere in its mission and predicted that success would be achieved. "We at Mary Washington have one significant advantage over many other institutions—and that is, we have a clear conception of the educational philosophy which constitutes the bedrock of our institution: namely, a firm commitment to the liberal arts and sciences. At a time when much of education is under attack, both from within and without, and when many other institutions are casting about to find their proper roles, and still others are experimenting with faddish educational approaches, it is comforting to know that we at Mary Washington are united in our common commitment to this fundamental educational philosophy which has proven its value in the past—and which promises to sustain us in the future."

Calling MWC "a jewel among the giants," Anderson expressed his belief that the College has the opportunity to never forget," he concluded, "that our primary reason for being, as a college, is to serve our students. We must strive constantly to prepare each one of them for a lifetime of productive accomplishment—a lifetime not only of earning, but of continued learning—and a lifetime of contributory citizenship. Ultimately, our worth as an institution will be measured by how well we have prepared our students to lead good and humane lives in a world yet to come—a world whose difficulties, as well as delights, we can scarcely imagine today."

Following the inaugural ceremony, a luncheon for distinguished guests and visitors was held in Seacobeck Hall. Gov. Robb, together with President and Mrs. Anderson, greeted over 500 well-wishers before joining the guests for lunch.

Afternoon activities included a student reception in the parlor of Ball Hall and an alumni reception later in the day at Trench Hill. Members of the classes ranging from the Golden Club to the Class of '83 were present, including alumni chapter presidents from all regions. As a radio news reporter circulated with a tape recorder, getting impressions from the guests for a special inaugural broadcast, President Anderson commented, "In light of all the arrangements that had been made, I expected that the day would be fun—but I really was not prepared for such an overwhelming experience. It's just been absolutely marvelous. People have gone out of their way to make it a real celebration."

The inaugural festivities came to a conclusion Saturday night (or, more accurately, early Sunday morning) with a Celebration in Lee Hall. A popular band from Richmond, Jack Diamond and Friends, played until well past midnight to an enthusiastic crowd of over 1,000 persons. Thus the weekend came to a close amidst a mood of relaxed conviviality, with the entire College community—students, faculty, administration, staff, and friends of the College—all joining in joyous celebration of a new era in the life of Mary Washington College.

achieve "national recognition as a model institution for the study of the liberal arts and sciences." Praising the faculty as "dedicated to good teaching, proud of their profession, and consequently concerned about the individual students under their tutelage," Anderson announced several initiatives to be launched in the near future for the enhancement of teaching effectiveness: the establishment of additional endowed chairs to attract and retain senior scholars; the providing of salary supplements for the faculty; the establishment of a visiting scholars program; and the expansion of the faculty development program.

Looking toward the future, the new president noted that the College must be willing to change when change is warranted but declared, "We must always hold true to those principles and values which have served us well, constantly holding before us that commitment to excellence which should pervade and inspire all that we do. Let us

MEMORABLE COMMENCEMENT

It is certain that the members of the graduating class of 1984 will long remember the day on which they moved from the status of student to that of alumnus. Many factors made the occasion especially noteworthy: It was the largest graduating class (508 students) in the history of the College; it was the first class to graduate under the presidency of Dr. William M. Anderson Jr.; it was enhanced by the conferring of two honorary degrees; and—yes, it rained!

Commencement weekend began on Friday evening, May 11, with Senior Convocation in Dodd Auditorium. The principal address of the evening was delivered by the College's Executive Vice President, Dr. A. R. Merchant, who told the Seniors that "from the perspective of the College, we hope that we have broadened your insights and your horizons; sharpened and stretched your intellectual abilities to think in the abstract as well as in the practical; heightened your curiosity and instilled a desire to learn more. . . . We have given you many intangibles which, while fragile, can be lasting—with your use."

Following Merchant's address, a number of awards were presented, including most notably: the MWC Alumni Award for academic achievement and outstanding service to the College, to Rosemarie Finney of Rocky Mount, Va.; the Outstanding Local Senior Award, presented by the Alumni Association to the Frederickburg area senior with the highest academic average, to Garnett Dale Galyen of Frederickburg; and the Kiwanis Award for leadership, scholarship and service, to Daniel K. Steen of Oakton, Va. The Jean Donovan Award, in memory of the MWC graduate who was killed in El Salvador in 1981, was awarded to Marie Ballard of Danbury, Conn., based upon her essay regarding human rights and service to others. An award was also presented to Kelly Jean Norton of Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., both for her work in fund-raising for the Donovan Award and for academic excellence, leadership, and service to the community.

Lavonda R. Simpson, president of the Senior Class, presented the Class gift, consisting of a $500 donation to the Prince B. Woodard Chair in Historic Preservation which was established in 1983 in honor of the late president of the College. The donation was part of "Senior Challenge '84," a program which encouraged seniors to participate in alumni activities prior to graduation.

The Commencement ceremony began Saturday morning as the traditional academic procession entered Ball Circle under threatening skies. Following the invocation by Lavonda Simpson, Gail Fallon Neal '59, rector of the Board of Visitors, extended an official welcome on behalf of the College. Mary Ann T. Burns, vice president for academic affairs and dean, announced academic honors achieved by members of the Senior Class, culminating with the presentation of the Colgate W. Darden Jr. Award, given each year to the graduating senior who has achieved the highest cumulative grade point average. The 1984 Darden Award went to Charlotte Jones, a psychology major from Suffolk, Va., who attained an overall grade point average of 3.91. The Grellet C. Simpson Award, bestowed annually to a member of the faculty in recognition of excellence in undergraduate teaching, was awarded to Bernard L. Mahoney Jr., professor of chemistry.

The Commencement Address was delivered by the President, William M. Anderson Jr. He commended the members of the graduating class for their rejection of the "me-ism" and the tendency toward self-absorption which characterized an earlier generation and praised them for their responsible and constructive outlook. Citing the value of a liberal education, he told the students, "You have been educated in a tradition which enables you to view issues from a diversity of perspectives—rather than from a narrow, provincial, egocentric, naive and frequently self-serving standpoint. Your education at Mary Washington has inculcated certain skills and values which will be crucial to constructive participation in the life of your society. . . . These are attributes which must not be wasted in a world in which they are increasingly wanting." Noting that there will be no lack of data and technical expertise in the world of the future, he pointed out that "What will be needed, more than ever, are persons with the wisdom to apply that data and that expertise constructively—and, indeed, compassionately. . . . It is precisely these larger questions which, owing to your education in the liberal arts and sciences, it will be your particular responsibility to address."

A highlight of the ceremony following the commencement address was the awarding of honorary doctorates in Humane Letters to two persons whose devotion to the College has been extraordinary. President Anderson emphasized that it was a distinction which the College did not bestow frivolously or capriciously, inasmuch as only three such degrees had been awarded in the entire history of the College to date.

In making the presentation to Lewis M. Walker Jr., of Petersburg, Anderson hailed him as one who had given unselfishly of his "time, talent and treasure—toward the end that the College might be truly exceptional." Having served as the first rector of the Mary Washington College Board of Visitors after the College gained independent status in 1972, Walker was praised by the president for providing the "wisdom, vision, firmness and sound judgment which enabled the College to progress during a most crucial period in its history."

The second honorary degree was conferred upon Katherine Edmondson Hopper '30, who served as a member of the Board of Visitors from 1972 until 1982 and as rector of the College for the last four of those years. Noting that in terms of loyalty to the College and in the extent and variety of service to the institution, no one has exceeded Mrs.

Hopper, President Anderson asserted that "in all her endeavors, she has evinced that special admixture of warmth, grace and good cheer which are uniquely hers. It is manifestly clear that her contributions are of such extent and character that they result, not from a mere sense of duty, but from a genuine love for her Alma Mater."

Prior to the awarding of degrees to the graduating class, Dean Mary Ann T. Burns announced that, through action of the Board of Visitors, professor emeritus status was conferred upon Dr. Herbert L. Cover, who retired this year after 35 years of service in the Department of Chemistry; also dean emeritus status was awarded to Dr. Edward Alvey Jr., the much beloved former dean of the College who retired in 1971.

Dean Burns then began the awarding of degrees—the roll call of names being punctuated by heavenward glances at the ever-darkening clouds. Degrees awarded included four Masters of Arts in Liberal Studies, 245 B.A.'s, 195 B.S.'s, 61 B.L.S.'s, and three Bachelors of Science in Medical Technology. At approximately the midpoint of the conferring of degrees, the rains, which had been impending throughout the ceremony, finally began. After a brief conference with Dean Burns, President Anderson approached the microphone with the intention of asking the assemblage if it wished to repair to the drier, albeit more confining, location of Dodd Auditorium. The proposition was defeated even before it could be stated, as the enthusiastic crowd vetoed the idea with a resounding "No!" With the spirits of the crowd clearly undampened by the downpour, the ceremony continued apace and, before the final degrees were conferred, the rain had stopped.

The ceremony concluded with the induction of the graduates into the Alumni Association by Barbara Creighton Willis '73, president-elect of the Association; the singing of the Alma Mater; and the recessional. Thereafter, students and their parents and friends, along with the College faculty and staff, moved to Brompton, where luncheon was served to approximately 2,500 guests. With the sun shining brightly by that time, a memorable graduation weekend came to a happy (and a dry) conclusion.

BY KRISTINE VAWTER

Homecoming 1984 was one of the largest and most successful in the history of the College. Amidst the refreshing beauty of the campus in springtime, approximately 500 returning alumni renewed friendships with classmates and re-established ties to their Alma Mater during a busy weekend which proved to be both entertaining and enlightening.

The weekend's activities began on Friday evening with a reception in the Rose Garden at Brompton. This gathering provided alumni with the opportunity to meet the new President of the College, William M. Anderson Jr., and to chat with former professors.

On Saturday morning, the alumni met in Dodd Auditorium. Called to order by Denise Mattingly Luck '74, vice president for Homecoming, the group first heard a presentation on "MWC Tomorrow" at a forum presided over by President Anderson. The program consisted of presentations by administrative officials concerning the current status and future prospects of the College.

Executive Vice President A. R. Merchant noted in his "trend analysis" that the College has grown from an enrollment of 117 in 1913 to an enrollment of 2,990 in 1983-84. In describing the characteristics of the 1983-84 student body, he pointed out that 2,610 were undergraduate degree-seeking students, and 254 were non-degree-seeking students, and 126 were graduate students; that 700 undergraduate men and 2,164 undergraduate women were enrolled; that 1,876 students were housed in residence halls on campus, while approximately one-third of the student body consisted of commuting students; and of the 126 graduate students, there were 63 men and 63 women. Looking toward the future, Merchant predicted that the College would continue to grow as the population of the surrounding area continued to increase.

Mary Ann T. Burns, vice president for academic affairs and dean, gave an overview of the academic program, including a discussion of the College's most recent additions to the curriculum: Business Administration, Computer Science, Historic Preservation, Performing Arts, Public Administration and Environmental Earth Science. She noted that over 10 percent of the 1984 graduating class earned the Bachelor of Liberal Studies degree—a degree specifically designed to meet the needs of non-traditional (i.e., older, commuting) students. Looking toward the future, Dean Burns predicted that the enrollment in the Master of Business Administration program will grow considerably. She concluded by noting that career advising has become a much more important concern in recent years, and she commended the alumni for their efforts in this regard. She particularly praised those who have visited the campus to share their knowledge of business and the professions with students.

H. Conrad Warlick, vice president for admissions and financial aid, presented a positive assessment of the current enrollment picture. He pointed out that the number of applications received this year is approximately 11 percent greater than the number received at the same point last year, and more than double the number of applications received in 1979. The increasing applicant pool, he emphasized, is crucial to the continued enhancement of academic quality in the student body. He praised the alumni for their assistance in recruitment through their willingness to represent the College at various College Night programs and through the sponsorship of receptions for high school students.

The Dean of Students, Joanne G. Southworth, described life outside the classroom at MWC. She explained that the College attempts to provide a variety of residence halls to fit the disparate lifestyles preferred by today's students. Accordingly, there are currently 13 residence halls with between 50 and 200 students each; six small houses with between nine and 25 students each; and three language houses to accommodate students in French, German and Spanish.

Dean Southworth also reported that there are presently over 60 organizations to which students can belong, taking into account almost every conceivable extracurricular interest. The guiding philosophy of Dean Southworth and her staff is that, in her words, "People tend to support what they build, so before we make any changes, we seek student input."

The final speaker in the forum was the recently appointed Director of the College's Center for Historic Preservation, Carter L. Hudgins. As the son of a Mary Washington alumna, Hudgins admitted that his mother had probably "imparted a genetic love of the College" to him. He expressed his delight at the prospect of helping to continue the development of the preservation program and indicated his belief that the College should soon achieve national prominence in the field of preservation education.

In bringing the forum to a conclusion, President Anderson emphasized the primacy which he places upon long-range planning. He announced that a comprehensive college planning committee is currently at work. "Planning for today is management for tomorrow," he stated, and it is in this way that realistic goals can be set for the future. Then resources can be secured for attaining those goals.

Later Saturday morning, the Alumni Association held its annual meeting, called to order by Doris Lindsey Whitfield '53, president of the association. Mrs. Whitfield introduced Gail Fallon Neal '59, rector of the College, who assured her fellow alumni that the College was "on the way toward a strong development program." This feeling was echoed by President Anderson. With evident enthusiasm, he proclaimed that it was "a joy to work toward making this College the finest institution in the United States."

Mrs. Whitfield expressed her appreciation to the members of the Alumni Board of Directors, as well as to several other persons, for their efforts on behalf of the organization during the past year. These included Mrs. Barbara Creighton Willis '73, president-elect; Dr. Elizabeth Davies Morie '74, vice president for annual fund; Mrs. Denise Mattingly Luck '74, vice president for homecoming; Miss Carey Ann Haus '74, vice president for chapters; Mrs. Judith Henley Beck '68, vice president for classes; Dr. Anderson; Dr. Richard E. Hansen, the faculty representative; and Roslyn Roach '84, the Senior Class representative.

Gifts of appreciation were presented to Mrs. Whitfield and the seven standing committee chairpersons who retired on July 1: Miss Jacqueline G. Tanous '82; Mrs. Virginia Poole Kinniburgh '53; Mrs. Elizabeth Muirheid Sudduth '69; Mrs. Frances Liebenow Armstrong '36; Mrs. Anne Daniel Fowler '57; Mrs. Katherine Edmondson Hopper '30; and Miss Janet Hedrick '73. Also commended for their work with the association were: Ms. Bobbie Burton '74, director of annual giving; Miss Anne Thompson '83, then assistant director of alumni programs; Mrs. Fannie Ellis, secretary to the director of alumni affairs; and Mrs. Lois Embrey, alumni bookkeeper.

Highlighting the meeting were the presentations of two prestigious awards. The 1984 Distinguished Alumnus Award was given to Ms. Ann Perinchief Palamar '67, and the 1984 Alumni Association Service Award—the first ever presented—went to Mrs. Frances Liebenow Armstrong. (See related stories.)

A delightful slide presentation entitled "Through the Years, 1939-1979" provided a nostalgic (and frequently humorous) retrospective of campus life during the past half century. Stirred by recollections of their student days, the alumni concluded the annual meeting with a rousing rendition of the Alma Mater.

The rolling lawns of Trench Hill, crowned by the College's huge new blue-and-white-striped tent, served as the setting for the luncheon which followed. Alumni and their guests enjoyed MWC's traditional hospitality as they served themselves from bountiful buffet tables graced in white linen. Spirited groups of classmates, alive with nostalgic conversation, gathered beneath the stately shade trees and under the cheery tent to reminisce while enjoying the typical and delicious southern fare.

Both at the luncheon and at the lively class reunion parties which followed, two themes predominated: the changes which have occurred and the continuing beauty of the campus. As the President of the Class of '34, Mary Virginia Willson, of Leesburg, Va., put it, "When we graduated, the only buildings here were Virginia, Betty Lewis, Monroe, and the Training School. When we arrived 50 years later, we were glad to have a map!" Another member of the Golden Club, Mary Ells Sharp '34, of Bridgeton, N.J., agreed, speaking for herself and her three roommates, "We think it's beautiful, but it is not where we went to school. It's so totally different today." Many returning alumni expressed delight that the newer buildings on campus were in architectural agreement with the earlier structures and that the school has refused to emulate the trend of some other institutions toward the construction of modern, skyscraper-type buildings. "Mary Washington," as one alumnus put it, "has kept the initial feeling of the place."

The brisk pace of activities continued into the evening, as the MWC Foundation held a reception at Trench Hill, while the Golden Club enjoyed a cocktail party and dinner at Seacobeck. That night, Lee Hall resounded with the melodies of the Levin Houston Band as alumni, professors and college officials gathered for the annual Homecoming party.

On Sunday morning, the enjoyable weekend concluded with church services in the amphitheater. The end of Homecoming 1984 found the Director of Annual Giving, Bobbie Burton, admittedly tired but obviously thrilled with the success of the event. "It was," she said, "certainly one of the largest and most enthusiastic turn-outs that we have ever had. And it seemed that everyone really enjoyed themselves." Alumni headed for home rejuvenated by the recollection of fond memories of Mary Washington College and by renewed affection for old friends.

Two Fredericksburg Women Receive Top Alumni Awards

BY PAULETTE S. WATSON

The Distinguished Alumnus Award, presented annually, and the Mary Washington College Alumni Association Service Award, presented this year for the first time, were both awarded to Fredericksburg women at Homecoming in May.

Ann Perinchief Palamar '67, commonwealth's attorney in Fredericksburg, received the Distinguished Alumnus Award for 1984. Following graduation from MWC, Ms. Palamar worked at the College as administrative assistant to the director of admissions and then as assistant director of admissions. In 1969 she became the director of alumni affairs, a position she resigned when she entered the Marshall-Wythe School of Law at the College of William and Mary. At the same time she was also appointed to the first Board of Visitors of Mary Washington College, which had just become independent from the University of Virginia.

In 1975, after admission to the Virginia Bar, she became assistant commonwealth's attorney for Fredericksburg. While pursuing her career, she also became extensively involved in community and alumni affairs. In 1980 she received the Rappahannock Legal Services Award for outstanding contributions to the advancement of legal justice and was also elected president of MWC's National Alumni Association. As campaign chairman for the Rappahannock United Way in 1981, she helped raise $238,000, even though the campaign goal was only $230,000. In January 1982, she was elected to a four-year term as commonwealth's attorney in Fredericksburg. Remaining an active member of the Fredericksburg Chapter of the Alumni Association, Ms. Palamar also served as chairman of the Alumni Committee for the 75th Anniversary of the College.

Alumni members praised Ms. Palamar for her many achievements in law, in service to the Alumni Association, and in work in the community. Alice Schermerhorn Raines '78, 1983 president of the Fredericksburg Chapter of the MWC Alumni Association, said that Palamar has been called upon to make "innumerable contributions of her time and expertise. She has done so willingly, faithfully, and with unfailing good humor and infectious enthusiasm. As busy as she is, she is never too busy to come to the aid of the Chapter, whether answering a legal question or helping with the packing of Exam Survival Kits. While others may be content to concentrate solely on professional or career activities, Ms. Palamar has exceeded that goal by also being a shining example of 'volunteerism' in action."

The selection of Frances Liebenow Armstrong '36 as the first recipient of the Mary Washington College Alumni Association Service Award was "a natural," according to Virginia Poole Kinniburgh '53, chairperson of the award committee. "When someone thinks of service," she said, "one thinks immediately of Mrs. Armstrong." Time, energy and dedication are given particular consideration in choosing the right person for this award.

In recent years, "Mrs. A." has served as social chairperson for the Fredericksburg Chapter and chairperson of Projects and Travel. She has done all the "little things" that take so much time and dedication and often turn out to mean the most. She has baked cakes, made bows for Valentine roses, and tied string on Halloween balloons. She has offered suggestions for fund-raisers and has been there to help all the way through the projects. She has planned parties and meetings, recruited members for the chapter, and has acted as an unofficial good will ambassador for the whole College. Recently, as part-time staff member in the President's Office, Mrs. Armstrong assembled memorabilia from 1908-83 in observance of the College's 75th Anniversary and later hand-addressed all the invitations to the Presidential Inaugural Celebration. "In these things and many others," said Denise Mattingley Luck, former president of the Fredericksburg Chapter, "her pride in serving Mary Washington was the only thing that mattered to her. Recognition is something she has never given a thought to. I don't think she's even aware that she has taken on projects most people would deem insurmountable."

Mrs. Armstrong accepted the award and the accompanying silver tray, saying, "I have had a lot of honors after teaching 43 years; I have even had a field named after me. But this honor is the greatest honor I've ever received. However, I must thank you all for giving me the opportunity to serve."

Nominations for Alumni Awards

Nominations for the Distinguished Alumnus Award for 1985 must be submitted to the Alumni Office by Dec. 1, 1984.

The Distinguished Alumnus is one who has made an outstanding contribution in one or more of the following areas: his/her profession or career, civic activities, creative endeavors in the arts and/or sciences, humanitarian causes, and service to Mary Washington College. Nominees must be graduates of Mary Washington College.

Nominations for the Mary Washington College Alumni Association Service Award must be submitted to the Alumni Office by Dec. 15, 1984.

The Mary Washington College Service Award is given to an alumnus who has served the College and/or the Alumni Association in a significant way.

Each candidate's nomination should have supporting material accompanying it. Such information may include a resume, questionnaires returned to the Alumni Office during reunion years, clippings, brochures and other documented publicity, letters of recommendation, and a photograph, if possible. The Alumni Association will help to locate this documentation.

Selection is made in January of each year, and the awards are presented at Homecoming.

Ann P. Palamar Acceptance Speech MWC Distinguished Alumnus Award May 19, 1984

It is difficult to convey to you how special it is for me to receive this award today. I thank you for the honor that you have bestowed upon me.

You and I are very lucky to have attended this college. I do not need to tell you about the academic quality of this institution nor of its rich tradition in the liberal arts, for you and I are the beneficiaries of that educational experience. Rather, it is about the human factor that I wish to talk with you today.

We are fortunate to have a dedicated faculty, some of whom have served this institution for more than thirty years, whose central concern is teaching. They do not suffer from the "publish or perish" syndrome. They are concerned about leave time and sabbaticals because they understand the need to renew themselves so that the quality of their teaching will be enriched, and so that they can continue to carry into the classroom that enthusiasm for their particular discipline as well as information on the latest developments in their fields of study.

The administration and the staff exhibit that same quality of caring. From the perspectives of my various relationships with the college, I have observed the people who work here, and with each experience, my respect for them and for this institution has grown. I have seen a president concerned about a student who could not afford to buy shoes. I have seen a secretary in the alumni office bake a birthday cake for a student aide because she knew that that would be something special. And I have seen a faculty member and a head resident work together to ease the transition for a culture-shocked, frightened, homesick freshman from Tangier Island. It is that quality of caring and concern for the individual which has enriched our educational experience and which makes this such a special place.

And, finally, the alumni. You, too, display that same caring. During almost 20 years of association with you, I have made many warm and enduring friendships, and I have watched as you have labored on behalf of this college. Recently, I have paused to wonder whether this particular institution attracted you because you were that kind of individual, or whether you became that caring person because you went here to school. It's the old chicken-or-the-egg question. I don't know.

You and I have a unique opportunity to determine, at least in part, the future of education in the Commonwealth and in the nation. There are many demands being made upon education today. In an age where specialization is the byword, we need to speak on behalf of the generalist—the product of a liberal arts education who can use his skills to adapt to a changing world, who understands that there are many sides to a question and that there are relationships among the different disciplines. We live in a time when it seems that everything is reduced to a formula—number of teachers, classroom space, financial assistance to the institution. And with these formulas comes the risk that all education will become homogenized—producing some standardized product. You and I need to speak out for the richness and diversity that the kind of educational experience at Mary Washington produces. We need to talk to our legislators, our neighbors, our friends, the students who will be attending college in the future. We look at the empty classrooms in our elementary schools today and know that in the 1990's those same conditions will reach our colleges—and some will not survive. We need to spread the message that the special kind of education we received here deserves funding. And when the state dollars are not sufficient, we need to dig into our own pockets to contribute so that the richness of that educational experience can continue to exist for those who follow us.

I thank you again for the honor you have given me, and I invite you to join me to work on behalf of this college in the days and years ahead.

Graduates in . . .

BY LINDA N. EVANS

The new dentist in Fredericksburg noticed somewhat more than the usual apprehension on the patient's face as she settled into the chair. Then, just as the examination got underway, the woman blurted, "Wait a minute. Are you the dentist?"

Theresa Young Crawley (B.S., MWC, '77; M.S., MCV, '79; D.D.S., MCV, '83) assured her that, yes, she was in fact the dentist.

"Well, I've never had a woman dentist before," said the patient warily. "I don't know if I want you to work on my teeth." But then her countenance brightened. "I do need a permanent, though. You can do my hair if you'd like."

Terrie Crawley relates the incident with her characteristic good humor, unfazed by the seemingly disparaging remark. "I'm sure she didn't mean it maliciously," says Dr. Crawley. "It's just that, like many patients, she was genuinely startled to see a female dentist. I guess they don't quite know how to react, so some of their comments are pretty amusing." As it turned out, she adds, "This particular woman became a very good patient. Most of them do, once they get used to the idea."

Patients' surprise is understandable in light of the paucity of female dentists. While almost all dental hygienists and assistants are women, there are still relatively few women with D.D.S. degrees, even at a time when sex barriers are being steadily removed, or at least weakened, in other traditionally male-dominated professions.

Why the percentage of women in dentistry is smaller than that in, for example, law or medicine, Dr. Crawley does not profess to know. "I suppose dentistry is not as 'glamorous' as some of the other professions," she says. "And perhaps there's the feeling that it requires more physical strength." According to the petite Dr. Crawley, a common reaction among acquaintances upon learning of her career goal was, "How can a little girl like you expect to pull teeth?" (The irony of that comment, she says, is that tooth extraction, under ordinary circumstances, is one of a dentist's easier tasks. "What people don't realize is that it's a matter of simple technique, not brute force.")

Although interested in a health-related career since her childhood, it was not until her senior year at MWC that she began to consider dentistry specifically. Even then she was hesitant, opting instead to pursue first a master's degree in anatomy at the Medical College of Virginia. "At the time I just didn't know of any female dentists," she explains, "so I guess I was a little reluctant to attempt it." Her thesis research (title: "Gross Morphological Teratology of Phencyclidine") led to her co-authorship of three published abstracts dealing with genetic defects caused by the use of the drug commonly known as "PCP" or "angel dust."

Despite the success of her work in the anatomy program—a development which she attributed to the excellence of her undergraduate courses in biology and chemistry at MWC—she was still more inclined toward dentistry than toward pure research. This inclination was reinforced following her marriage in 1979 to William B. Crawley Jr., then professor of history at MWC and now executive assistant to the president. "Bill really encouraged me," she recalls, "even though he realized it would mean four years of a rather unconventional lifestyle if I continued in school."

Following her acceptance into the dental program at MCV, the couple decided upon an arrangement whereby they would live in Richmond for the first two years, with Bill commuting to MWC, and then reverse the procedure for the last two years. "It was worse for Terrie," he points out, "because she always had to be at school by 8 a.m., whereas my schedule was more flexible. Most of the time she had to leave before sunrise and didn't get back home until after dark." Terrie gives her spouse credit for making the situation more tolerable by usually having dinner prepared when she returned. "For someone who had never done any cooking, I thought he managed reasonably well," adding with a smile, "the variety may not have been extensive, but at least he was reliable."

Despite the inconveniences of the commuting schedule, there were actually some economic benefits during the last year when Terrie, turning an apparent burden into an advantage, organized and operated her own van pool business between Fredericksburg and Richmond. Though profitable, the business was viewed strictly as a means to an end, and was therefore sold as soon as dental school was completed. Says Terrie, "My ambition was certainly not to be in the transportation business!"

Although their time together was limited during the regular academic year, the Crawleys' summertime involvement with the Governor's School for the Gifted provided a measure of compensation. With Bill serving as local

Non-Traditional Occupations

BY KRISTINE VAWTER

Judging from the escapades of such fictional characters as Sam Spade, Jim Rockford, Magnum, P.I., and Mannix, it would seem that the life of a private investigator is one of constant excitement and unremitting danger. It would also appear that it is a job "for men only."

Untrue on both counts, according to Jan Lutinski '79, one of the few female private investigators in the country. As an employee of the Fairfax, Va., firm of Uffinger's for the past two years, Jan has yet to experience the violent confrontations and high-speed automobile chases which occur daily in the lives of TV detectives. In fact, she has found that, in contrast to the flamboyant lifestyles of fictional "private eyes," the hallmark of her profession in "real life" is anonymity. Accordingly, when she does have to follow a "subject"—an investigator's term for the person being investigated—the surveillance is conducted in her unobtrusive Oldsmobile rather than in a more racy model of the type preferred by celluloid heroes.

Jan's firm engages in a variety of casework, including criminal, industrial, and automotive investigations, and has established a special reputation for success in locating missing children—a fact which has led to appearances by the company's president on "60 Minutes" and "Good Morning, America." The great majority of Jan's work, however, deals with domestic relations—specifically with the "tailing" of a spouse suspected of infidelity.

Her daily schedule is decidedly unconventional. "I spend almost no time at all in the office," she says. "The only time I go in is to pick up information on a case that I've been assigned. I have to get a photograph of the subject, his or her address, and a description of the car that he or she might drive. Then I'm basically on my own. I only go back to the office to submit a report when the case is concluded."

The pursuit of subjects has taken her "thousands of miles," she estimates, and has involved diverse locales ranging, literally, from racetracks to churches and from bowling alleys to art galleries—as well as to more distant and exotic locations. Sometimes the "chase" takes an unanticipated turn, as in one case which began innocuously with the following of a woman in the Northern Virginia area. "I started out driving," she recalls, "but the woman got on a plane and flew to New York. I followed her there. Then she flew to the Bahamas, so I followed her there. Then she went to another island, so, of course, I followed her there, too. Obviously, the job has some advantages," she says, adding quickly, "provided you don't mind working with an uncertain schedule and you can travel 'light'."

In truth, Jan's decision to become a private investigator was fortuitous, not the result of a career "master plan." Upon graduation from MWC with a major in history, she entered law school at the University of Pittsburgh, from which she received her law degree in 1982. To fill the interim between graduation and her admittance to the District of Columbia bar, she considered various kinds of traditional, short-term employment, and, as something of a lark, decided to contact Uffinger's, thinking that investigative work would have more applicability to her legal training than would other, more traditional kinds of jobs. Although the agency had never hired a female investigator, she was offered a job immediately—the result, she believes, of her legal training. Notwithstanding four years of law school, however, she found that she was still required to go to detective school in order to review those aspects of the law most germane to investigative work, as well as to learn various investigative techniques, notably surveillance. Her employment in such a clandestine (and potentially dangerous) profession prompted a variety of responses: fear from her parents, amazement from her friends, and skepticism from her male counterparts. The firm's male employees, unaccustomed to a petite, demure, female associate—and one who possessed a law degree to boot—initially questioned whether Jan possessed sufficient courage and stamina for the job. She very quickly convinced the skeptics, however, and has demonstrated the ability to handle successfully all facets of her job.

Her most essential piece of equipment is not a .44 pistol but a 35mm camera, a tool which is indispensable in providing evidence in many domestic relations cases. She has not only become a proficient photographer but has also had to use considerable ingenuity on some occasions in order to produce the needed photographic evidence. On one assignment, realizing that the subjects would be suspicious if she simply trained the camera on them, she asked a somewhat startled bystander to use her camera to photograph her, whereupon she positioned herself precisely so as to capture the subjects in the background of the picture.

director of the school and with Terrie working in several capacities on the staff, the two lived on campus in close proximity to the students for the duration of the session. While they agree that the experience was "exciting, challenging and rewarding," the intensive and concentrated nature of the program meant that it was also, in Terrie's words, "hardly the most relaxing way to spend one's summer."

Graduation from dental school in May 1983 brought a welcome change in lifestyle for the new Dr. Crawley. Up to that point, hers had been largely a peripatetic existence. Not only had there been the recent commuting to MCV, but prior to college, growing up in a military family, she had moved frequently, attending 14 different schools literally from coast to coast before graduating from high school in California; thereupon her family moved to Japan where she spent several summers. Not surprisingly, she came to regard MWC and Fredericksburg as home. Her four years there, she said, amounted to "by far the longest that I'd ever lived in one place. I really came to love the College and the community."

She was thus delighted to be offered an associateship with the established Fredericksburg practice of Dr. Benjamin J. Pritchett (whose wife, Phyllis, is also a Mary Washington alumna, Class of '76). Was Dr. Pritchett a bit leery of bringing in as an associate the city's first female dentist? "Not at all," he says flatly. "To be honest about it, I never even thought of it in male/female terms. I was just looking for a good associate—period—and I felt Terrie was it."

The joint practice is devoted to general dentistry, rather than specialization, which is precisely the way Dr. Crawley prefers it, since it provides the opportunity for work in the various areas of the field: restoration, endodontics, periodontics, pedodontics, and prosthodontics. Her primary emphasis is on preventive dentistry—a doctrine which she expounds with near-religious fervor.

In addition to trying to persuade her patients, through appeal to either their vanity or their pocketbooks, to take good care of their teeth, her other "mission" is to change their frequently negative attitudes toward dentistry itself. "There's a whole mystique of fear about it," she says. "There's a pervasive attitude that automatically associates dentistry with pain. I can understand how this concept originated because, in an earlier day, there undoubtedly was a great deal of pain involved, but this need not be true today. There have been incredible improvements, but old attitudes are slow to change."

One innovative aspect of Dr. Crawley's practice involves somewhat unorthodox office hours, which include evenings and Saturdays. The reason stems mainly from the fact that the Fredericksburg area now comprises a sizable commuter population—a group with whom Dr. Crawley has special empathy. "I know from experience how difficult it is for such people to make appointments during 'normal' office hours, so perhaps this way we can make it more convenient for them—as well as for others who, because of school or jobs, find it inconvenient to come in during the day." As to the effect of the unusual schedule on home life, she claims that it creates no problem because "Bill works so much in the evenings anyway. Sometimes I think he should be charged with bigamy—married to Mary Washington as well as to me!"

What about the disparity in professions between the two Drs. Crawley? What do the dentist and the historian have in common? "In terms of our work, obviously very little," says she, "but I think that's fine. I imagine it would be pretty dull to be married to someone in exactly the same field." As it is, much of her reading—a diversion which she pursues avidly—is in historical novel genre, while he has become increasingly knowledgeable about dentistry. "I don't think he's ready to practice yet—he hasn't the stomach for it," she comments wryly, "but I'm surprised at how much he's learned about a subject so far removed from his own."

Despite her distinctly minority position as a woman within her profession, Dr. Crawley disclaims pioneer status. "The fact is, I'm not a trailblazer," she says. "I'm sure it was more difficult for women a few years ago, but by the time I reached dental school, we [women] weren't regarded as a curiosity or a rarity." She points out that approximately 15 percent of her class of 110 were women, including one other MWC graduate, Susan Grimes '76. "Except for one older professor, who persisted in calling us 'Sweetie,' I didn't detect any overt sexism at MCV," she recalls.

That was school. How about life in the "real world"? Does she anticipate any particular problems? While admitting that it's too early in her practice to answer categorically, it is clear that she believes not. The occasional flippant comment notwithstanding, her acceptance by men, women, and children alike has been uniformly positive. The day is not far off, she believes, when the sight of a female dentist will be wholly unre-markable. "There will be more and more of us as time goes on. There's no reason why there shouldn't be."

In the meanwhile, her practice thrives. Don't bother to call for a permanent. She's heard that one already.

Linda Evans, formerly director of publications at MWC, is now director of public relations at Randolph-Macon College.

The young sleuth has found that the more serious threats of bodily harm have come, not from people at all, but from their canine friends. "There are times," she says, "when I'm in the woods behind a house. All of a sudden the occupants hear a noise, and the floodlights come on, and the dogs start barking. Basically, all you can do is just fall down, lie there without moving, and just hope and pray that the dogs don't come and find you while you're lying there." These are the times, she admits, when she finds herself thinking, "I really should have a nice job in an office somewhere."

She does, in fact, plan to seek a position as an attorney before too long, noting that she "didn't go to school all those years just to be a 'private eye'."

In the meanwhile, she continues to find her current job to be satisfying in many respects, despite its drawbacks. There is, she points out, special gratification in helping to recover a missing child.

She also takes satisfaction from her work in domestic relations cases, even though some cases have rather unsavory aspects. "The people who come to us are often in desperate domestic situations," she says, "and sometimes hiring a 'private eye' is the only way they can secure the assistance they need to extricate themselves."

Above all, Jan enjoys the variety of challenges which her work presents. "Every case requires a different technique," she says. "Every subject is different. Every day there's the chance to go to a different city and to see different people." And then there is the satisfaction of resolving a case successfully and of having the results of her work stand up in the legal process. Her firm's success ratio is impressive in this regard. "If a case goes to court," says Jan, "we prove our case 98 percent of the time."

All in all, Jan has found her experience to be worthwhile and feels that it will be useful to her in the practice of law. And besides, who knows when the next case might take her to the Bahamas?

Historic Preservation Program Moves Ahead

The recent months have been especially busy and successful ones for Historic Preservation at Mary Washington. The academic program was strengthened during the spring semester by the contributions of several adjunct professors who provided specific expertise in the areas of archaeology, archives and preservation law. The growing reputation of the major program is attested by the large percentage of 1984 graduates who have either been accepted at prominent graduate schools or have secured employment for next year in the field of historic preservation.

The Center for Historic Preservation, the public outreach component of the preservation program, has been especially active. In addition to the ongoing services provided by its Speakers Bureau, the Center has sponsored a variety of public events during 1984. Perhaps the most auspicious of these was a spring lecture series entitled, "Winterthur in Virginia." This collaborative effort between the Center and the Henry Francis du Pont Museum in Wilmington, Del., was organized by Richard Palmieri, associate professor of geography, who served during 1983-84 as the interim associate director of the Center. Each lecture in the program focused on an important aspect of the American decorative arts and was delivered by a member of the professional staff of the prestigious Winterthur Museum. It is believed that the success of the series—which was well attended by both MWC students and the regional community—will result in a continuing relationship between the College and Winterthur.

During the spring, the Center collaborated with Gunston Hall in the sponsorship of an illustrated lecture, "The English Country House," by Geoffrey Beard, former director of the Visual Arts Centre of the University of Lancaster and a widely noted lecturer both in Europe and in North America. This program, which was held at Gunston Hall, is indicative of the Center's outreach effort and its interest in aiding other preservation groups throughout the Commonwealth. Moreover, an unanticipated dividend has already accrued to the College in the form of a generously funded summer internship at Gunston Hall.

The Center's Fifth Annual Conference, "Blueprint for Renovation," held June 14-16, brought together a faculty of eminent authorities on various aspects of residential renovation and decoration, among them Adriana Scalaman-dre-Bitter, president of Scalaman-dre Silks, Inc.; Sarah Sherrill, associate editor of Antiques Magazine; Douglas Harnsberger, historical architect for the Virginia Historic Landmarks Commission; and Edgar Mayhew, director of the Lyman Allyn Museum in New London, Conn. The conference, which attracted an enthusiastic and appreciative audience, also featured plenary session addresses by Max Ferro of Preservation Partnership in New Bedford, Mass., and by William Seale, author of The Taste-ful Interlude and a multi-volume history of the White House.

The prospects for the preservation program during the coming year and beyond are bright indeed, owing to several important developments. First, the academic program will be administered as a separate department, rather than as a major within the Department of History and American Studies. While the program will continue to be interdisciplinary in character, the establishment of a separate department will enhance its identity and visibility, facilitate its administration, and increase the cohesiveness of its academic content.

The most significant development involves the appointment, for the first time, of a full-time director for the preservation program. Effective July 1, Dr. Carter L. Hudgins assumed dual responsibilities as director of the Center for Historic Preservation and as chairman of the new Department of Historic Preservation, replacing Dr. William B. Crawley Jr., who relinquished the directorship of the program in order to devote full time to his duties as executive assistant to the president of the College. Hudgins holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Richmond, master's from Wake Forest University, and doctorate in history from the College of William and Mary. His primary areas of specialization are in material culture, social history, architectural history and archaeology. He brings to the program commendable experience both in the classroom and in the field, having taught at Armstrong State College and at the University of Alabama in Birmingham, and having been actively involved in preservation activities in both Georgia and Alabama.

Commenting on the appointment of the new director, College President William M. Anderson Jr. complimented the work of the outgoing director, Dr. Crawley. "Bill has done a fine job of getting the program established," he said, "especially in light of the other responsibilities which he had concurrently. We believe, however, that the appointment of a full-time director will enable the Center to move to a new level of operation. We feel that Carter Hudgins, by virtue of his academic preparation, experience in the field, and personal character, is the ideal person for this task."

Beginning with the fall term, the preservation staff will also be augmented by the addition of John Pearce as assistant professor and assistant director of the Center for Historic Preservation. Mr. Pearce, who was formerly with the National Trust for Historic Preservation and who served as the chief preservation officer for the state of Maryland, served on the MWC faculty last fall as an adjunct instructor and proved himself to be both a skillful teacher and an effective link with the preservation community. A graduate of the University of Delaware's Winterthur program, he brings to Mary Washington particular expertise in the area of the decorative arts.

Plans are currently underway for a fall public lecture series, as well as for the Center's annual Christmas program, an event which has proven to be most popular during the past three years. Further information regarding upcoming activities may be obtained by writing to Mary Washington College, Center for Historic Preservation, Monroe Hall, Room 208, Fredericksburg, VA 22401-5358 or by calling (703) 899-4037.

Where Are They Now?

BY CARLTON R. LUTTERBIE JR.

Just a few weeks after his retirement in June 1982 as a professor of sociology at Mary Washington College, L. Clyde Carter Jr. found himself in an old, unused cellar under the foyer of the United Methodist Church in Fredericksburg, picking through a colonial refuse pit. He had been asked to conduct an archaeological exploration of the cellar as part of the church's centennial celebration. Though the artifacts he unearthed were of no great value—pig bones and some ceramic pieces—it marked the beginning of a retirement filled with activities devoted to his avocation—archaeology—and his “other” vocation—the ministry.

Carter joined Mary Washington College in 1948, a year in which, Carter notes, the College “filled out its liberal arts faculty.” He applied for the job having been ordained in the Presbyterian church and having completed course work for a doctorate in philosophy from Yale University. (He received the degree in 1955.) It was his first teaching position, although he had leaned toward the educational aspects of the ministry—more than the pastoral ones—during his years at Union Theological Seminary. His early interest, in fact, had been in campus ministry, and he had spent 17 months in such a role at East Carolina Teachers' College (now East Carolina University) in Greenville, N.C. Feeling constantly on the periphery of things, however, and that the real issues were being dealt with in the classroom, Carter went off to Yale to equip himself to teach.

With a degree in philosophy, however, the last thing he expected to teach was sociology. But in 1948, MWC was trying to start a program in sociology—Phillip Allen had launched the first courses the previous year—and since Carter's philosophy degree had a concentration in social ethics, he was asked to join that program. And there he stayed. His specialties within the field soon became the sociologies of religion, of race and minorities, and of aging. He, in fact, introduced social gerontology to the curriculum, teaching it for four years before his retirement. It has not been taught since.

Since retiring, Carter says, he has been “busier than ever.” While he still gives some time to sociology—serving as a guest lecturer for the department—his energies have gone primarily into archaeology and the ministry.

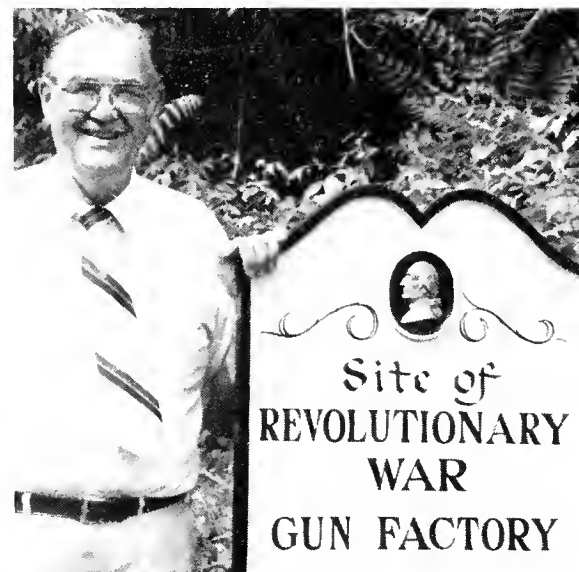

The excavation of the Methodist Church cellar was a short-term affair. In the longer range, Carter hopes to revive a project begun in spring 1975, when the Fredericksburg Bicentennial Commission asked him to explore the site of a colonial gun factory near Hazel Run and Walker-Grant School in Fredericksburg. Although his interests run more toward prehistoric archaeology—he hopes someday to explore Indian sites along the Rappahannock River—Carter eagerly accepted the challenge and managed in a short time, and with the help of students in a summer field archaeology course, to locate the foundations of the gun factory and to establish its time period. As the bicentennial ended, however, and funding for the project dried up, Carter was forced to cover up his trenches. Now Carter hopes to resurrect the project, perhaps enlisting the support of MWC's Center for Historic Preservation, and expand its scope to uncover a nearby powder magazine and grist mill.

While waiting for this dream to materialize, Carter is assisting the Presbyterian church in realizing another dream.

Approached last year by his presbytery, Carter agreed to serve as parish associate to help establish a new Presbyterian church in Spotsylvania County, just south of Fredericksburg. With The Rev. Carson Rhyne, minister of Summit Presbyterian Church in Stafford County, Carter has been serving as part-time pastor, preaching one or two Sundays each month, offering pastoral services to current members, and recruiting new members within roughly a 15-mile radius. And the new church is growing rapidly. Meeting now in the “Cow Palace,” at Hazelwild Farm—a building used for elementary school classes at the Hazelwild School—the congregation consists of about 70 members and has purchased a seven-acre tract in Spotsylvania County, hoping to start building by Christmas 1985.

Besides offering ministerial services to this fledgling church, Carter serves as a supply preacher for other area Presbyterian churches and for the interdenominational church at Lake of the Woods, a private community near Fredericksburg. Approximately one Sunday a month finds him in one of these area pulpits.

In spring 1983, Carter's wife, Virginia, joined him in retirement, ending some 12 years as a kindergarten teacher at Fredericksburg's Hugh Mercer School. Mary Ellen Stephenson

BY LINDA BURCH

Ten pairs of dark brown eyes peered through the open windows of the little church kitchen at Vera Cruz. These eyes belonged to little brothers and sisters of the teen-age girls who were taking cooking lessons inside. The young children waited patiently while the teacher, a white-haired American woman, instructed the girls in making a simple casserole. The children were willing to wait for the cooking lesson to end because they knew this kind lady would invite them in to sample the tasty dishes.

The white-haired American lady who shared her culinary skills with the Panamanian girls was Mary Ellen Stephenson. Reaching legal retirement age in 1981, this woman is far from being retired. "I'm not a thumb-twiddler," says Miss Stephenson.

Mary Ellen Stephenson is a native of Richmond, Va., where she received her A.B. degree from Westhampton College of the University of Richmond. She majored in French and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and Mortar Board. Miss Stephenson taught Spanish in Richmond's public schools for 12 years, during which time she completed work on her master's degree at Middlebury College and her doctorate at the University of Chicago with a specialty in Romance languages. In 1948, Miss Stephenson came to Mary Washington to teach Spanish. Her influence within the Spanish department brought about the first language house on campus. As resident counselor of the Spanish house, Framar, she developed a new program for the Spanish majors who lived there.

In 1950, Miss Stephenson was appointed dean of women, a position she held until 1953, while still teaching at least two classes. In 1953, she gave up these duties to become assistant dean of students under Dr. Margaret Hargrove, while still continuing to teach Spanish. Holding this position for the next 10 years, Miss Stephenson worked to bring a chapter of Mortar Board as well as Phi Sigma Iota, the national honorary Romance language fraternity, to MWC.

After a year of teaching French at Women's Christian College in Madras, India, in 1966, Miss Stephenson returned to Mary Washington where she resumed full-time teaching. She was appointed chairperson of the Modern Foreign Languages Department, a position she held until her retirement in 1981.

A devoted teacher and lay leader in Fredericksburg's United Methodist Church for many years, it was only natural that Miss Stephenson sought to be of service through the church when she retired. She contacted the Board of Global Ministries of the United Methodist Church and offered her services in any capacity. Because of her background in Spanish and as a teacher with advanced degrees, Miss Stephenson was sent to Panama. Her job was to teach English to non-English speaking teachers in the bilingual school, Instituto Panamo Americano, which is supported by the Methodist Church. In addition to her teaching duties at IPA, she occasionally taught English to private students and also taught Sunday School.

Each Sunday Miss Stephenson would attend the nondenominational Union Church where, she said, "I received my inspiration," and then catch a bus to Resurrection Church where she fulfilled her duty as a Sunday School teacher. While attending Union Church, Miss Stephenson heard of a group called Fellowship of Concern, made up mostly of North Americans representing many professions, who met once a month to discuss what they could do to aid the Panamanian poor. "This group represents missions on the spot," she explained. At each monthly meeting, the group heard a plea from a member, a local priest or minister, or a citizen who saw a desperate need the group could serve. "Poverty screams at you," Miss Stephenson said.

In February 1983, Miss Stephenson and other members of Fellowship of Concern listened to a plea for aid to the young people of Vera Cruz, a small village near Panama City. Although buses run from that village to the city, most of the teen-agers did not have the 35 cents bus fare to travel to the city for entertainment. In order to keep these poverty-bound youngsters off the streets and out of trouble, the Fellowship decided that something had to be done, especially among the girls whose lack of channels into which to put their teenage energy often resulted in pregnancies and early marriages. Many such girls had no knowledge of how to care for a family.

Miss Stephenson and Andrea Boersma, a Dutch friend in the Fellowship, decided to organize cooking classes for the girls. To finance the classes, Miss Stephenson used donations sent to her by friends at the Fredericksburg United Methodist Church, combined with contributions from Fellowship members. With this money they bought a used stove, a supply of food, and cooking utensils. They found a work area in the community church. To keep the girls from feeling that they were receiving handouts, which Panamanians are strongly against, Miss Stephenson told the girls they could contribute whatever they could afford toward the purchase of food.

Each Saturday afternoon, 15 to 18 girls met with their two teachers and learned to cook low-cost recipes, which seldom contained cheese or meat since these foods were unaffordable to their families. Prizes were awarded to girls who prepared dishes at home during the week. Not only were these classes popular with the girls, but a typical class soon grew by 10 or 12 as brothers and sisters came to sample the food prepared each day.

As if she wasn't busy enough teaching English at IPA, teaching Sunday School, and conducting cooking classes, Miss Stephenson travelled to many parts of Panama to witness what other church groups were doing. She visited a Dr. Gruber, who performed amazing surgery on Cuna Indian children born with cleft palates and mouth deformities as a result of intermarriage within the tribe. Miss Stephenson also travelled over unpaved roads and by boat to remote outposts such as a clinic run by two English nurses who provided the only medical care for Panamanians living in villages far from any major city.

For 2½ years, Mary Ellen Stephenson served the Methodist church in Panama. She gave willingly of her time and talents in retirement just as she gave during her many years of service to Mary Washington College. Now that she is back in Fredericksburg, Miss Stephenson is looking for ways to be of further service to the church and com-

ON CAMPUS at MWC

Legislative Tour

For one weekend during the 1984 session of the General Assembly, the Fredericksburg area became, in effect, the capital of Virginia, with Mary Washington College serving as the epicenter of activity. The event, which was held January 27-29, was sponsored jointly by the area Chamber of Commerce and the local governmental bodies of Fredericksburg, Spotsylvania and Stafford for the purpose of acquainting the members of the Legislature and other top-level state officials with the attractions, as well as with the problems, of the local area. Based on the theme, "The Fredericksburg Area, Where Excitement Began . . . and Never Ends," the various activities of the weekend provided the opportunity for low-key lobbying efforts by local leaders in business, government and education.

Although the College was not an official sponsor of the legislative tour, the campus served as the location for several of the major events. On Friday evening, the entourage, led by Gov. and Mrs. Charles S. Robb, arrived from Richmond at duPont Hall for an opening reception which featured a narrated film on the area as well as exhibits (arranged under the supervision of MWC Associate Professor of Art Joseph C. DiBella) on local history, government, industry, and arts and crafts. From duPont, the legislative party followed the candlelit walkway to Seacobeck Hall, where they were treated to the "Foods of Fredericksburg," an extensive buffet presented by approximately 20 area restaurants which offered their house specialties, ranging from the "down home" barbeque of Allman's to the haute cuisine of La Petite Auberge. Following the meal, the guests also had a choice of musical styles, dancing either to a jazz ensemble in the South Room or to a country and western band in the North Room. The latter group seemed to attract the more enthusiastic following, with several prominent members of the Legislature taking turns at the microphone.

Most of the following day was devoted to bus tours of Fredericksburg and the surrounding counties, with stops at various industrial facilities and historic sites. Having been divided into three groups for the tour, some of the visiting party had lunch at Brompton and others at Belmont while the third group dined at a local restaurant. The highlight of the weekend, in terms of the College's participation, came Saturday night when MWC served as host to the entire entourage for a gala dinner in Lee Hall Ballroom. Following an elegant meal, the guests were entertained by the MWC Chorus, which presented a lively medley of Broadway show tunes to the obvious delight of the audience.

College President William M. Anderson Jr. noted that the institution was pleased to cooperate with local government officials and with the area Chamber of Commerce to make the tour a success. While the purpose of the event was not to engage in "hard sell" lobbying, he noted, it did nonetheless provide the opportunity "to show the legislators what the College has to offer and, at the same time, to indicate clearly what our needs are."

According to William B. Crawley Jr., executive assistant to the president, who was in charge of coordinating the College's participation in the event, a major objective was to insure that the visiting legislators had the opportunity to meet as many MWC students as possible. Toward that end, approximately 150 students (organized by Daniel K. Steen, president of the Student Association) participated in various aspects of the tour—greeting guests, acting as guides, helping out in the cloakrooms, serving the dinner as well as providing musical entertainment on Saturday night. "We felt that the most effective, and the most appropriate, way for us to demonstrate the quality of the College was to have the legislators actually meet our students," said Crawley. "Our students are always our best 'sales people,' and, judging from the favorable comments which I heard from a number of the legislators, this proved to be the case during the tour."

Irrespective of any tangible dividends which might have resulted in terms of budget appropriations, it was evident that when the touring group returned to Richmond, it did so with a much better understanding of the Fredericksburg area in general, and with a greater appreciation of Mary Washington College in particular.

Isabel Gordon

Miss A. Isabel Gordon '42, MWC's director of Career Placement Services, recently achieved a unique distinction when she was awarded a Special Lifetime Membership by the Virginia College Placement Association at its annual meeting in Richmond, Va. The award, created expressly for Miss Gordon to honor her singular contributions in the field of career placement, was presented by James H. Malone, VCPA president, who extolled her many contributions: founding member and currently historian of VCPA; the first woman to serve as president of the organization, having been elected to that office in 1967; former president of the Southern College Placement Association (1971-72) and recipient of that organization's Distinguished Service Award. Having spoken of her "leadership, knowledge, experience and unselfish devotion," Malone presented the award to Miss Gordon, saying, "You have helped the organization grow, survive, and develop into what it is today. You have represented the association and your profession in superior fashion and have set the standards for those who follow."

A member of the MWC Class of 1942, Miss Gordon pursued additional academic work at the Richmond Professional Institute (now Virginia Commonwealth University) and worked for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Chrysler Corporation, and the U.S. Employment Service prior to returning to MWC in 1955, when she was hired by Dean Edward Alvey Jr.—"my mentor," she calls him—as director of Career Placement Services. She has held that position continuously since that time,

Annual Report of Gifts 1983-84

Mary Washington College Foundation, Inc.

Message From the President

Dear College Alumni and Friends:

As I complete my first full year as President, it gives me great pleasure to thank you and congratulate you on establishing a new high for the Annual Fund. Through your record support totalling $252,815.24, you have demonstrated your understanding of the critical importance of such funding for Mary Washington College.

As the accompanying chart indicates, there has been steady growth in annual contributions to the College. The growth in dollar contributions has been accompanied by similar increases in numbers of gifts and giving club membership.

The gifts received this past year will have an enriching effect on many areas of the College, while providing for faculty professional development, scholarships for exceptionally well-qualified students, assistance for certifiably needy students, institutional materials and equipment, certain special events, expanded services to alumni, and support for a more broad-based development program. This increased private support is especially important during a time when increased state funding is not guaranteed.

Another highlight this year has been the expansion of the President's Council from 27 to 46 members. Composed of individuals and corporations who contribute $1,000 or more each year, the Council establishes an exemplary standard of giving which serves to inspire participation from growing numbers of alumni, parents, friends, corporations, and foundations. We are most grateful for this leadership support.

Special congratulations to the Class of 1984 who recognized very early the need for participation from Mary Washington College alumni. They have challenged all subsequent senior classes to tangibly demonstrate their support of the education received at Mary Washington College by making a dollar pledge in their senior year. The idea was enthusiastically embraced by the Class of '84 who initiated the Senior Challenge program with a 33% participation rate.

Completing the endowment of the Prince B. Woodard Endowed Chair of Historic Preservation continues to be a funding priority. While we have made great progress toward its establishment, I encourage continued support for the memorial to this great man and former president.

My first year as President of Mary Washington College has served to reaffirm my confidence in the institution and in the people who support it. The future looks very bright indeed, as the pride in Mary Washington College is evident among students, alumni, faculty and staff, and community friends.

Thank you for your generosity and goodwill towards Mary Washington College as we strive to merit your continuing support.

Sincerely,

William M. Anderson, Jr.
President

President's Council

The Mary Washington College President's Council is composed of alumni, parents, and friends who generously support the College through an annual gift of $1,000 or more. Originally called the President's Club at Mary Washington College, the Council was established in June of 1980 in recognition of the critical importance of major gifts in achieving increased annual fund goals and to pay special tribute to such giving leadership. It is the most prestigious of the annual giving clubs at Mary Washington College.

President's Council support has shown steady growth with 14 members in 1980-81, 22 in 1981-82, 27 in 1982-83 and 46 in 1983-84. With such support, Mary Washington College is achieving its highest aspirations.

MWC

During the Spring of 1984, the Senior Class at Mary Washington College created an annual fund pledge program called Senior Challenge '84. Members of the class were contacted by their classmates and were asked to consider a pledge to the Mary Washington College Fund for the next five years. Forty-two percent of the senior class accepted the challenge and made a pledge for the five-year period. This was the first direct effort by a Mary Washington College Senior Class to make a tangible demonstration of support for academic excellence at Mary Washington College. The class asked that their contribution be restricted to the Prince B. Woodard Endowed Chair of Historic Preservation to memorialize the man they knew as president during most of their tenure at Mary Washington College. The class is to be congratulated for exceeding the average rate of participation for all classes this year with a total of 33 percent, with 170 students participating making a $1,832.50 initial payment on a total pledge of $19,690.

Dorothy Van Winckel
Memorial Gallery Fund

As a living memorial to his sister, Ben O. Duggan donated most of Mrs. Van Winckel's works to the Mary Washington College Department of Art to be sold for the purpose of creating a fund to be used to further art exhibitions at Mary Washington College. While many purchased paintings and sketches, the following have made cash contributions to the fund in memory of Mrs. Van Winckel who was chairman of the Art Department for over 40 years.

Prince B. Woodard
Endowed Chair of Historic Preservation

In memory of Mary Washington College's beloved fifth president, the College's first endowed faculty chair, known as the Prince B. Woodard Endowed Chair of Historic Preservation, was established in 1983. To date, over $60,000 toward the $150,000 necessary has been raised. This type of endowment is becoming a high priority in the College's perpetual pursuit of excellence. Listed below are those people who have made contributions to this special fund since the last annual report.

and in the process has become so well known that the name Isabel Gordon and the placement office at Mary Washington have become virtually synonymous to numerous student generations.

While her devotion to her job makes the College paramount among her activities, Miss Gordon has always been involved beyond the campus in the affairs of the Fredericksburg community. She is active in, among many other civic and professional organizations, the Fredericksburg Chapter of the MWC Alumni Association and the Kenmore Association. Indicative of her love for animals, she is a member of the Fredericksburg Area Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and currently serves as president of that group. Proud of her Scottish heritage, she is also an active member of the American branch of the House of Gordon.

From the vantage point of 30 years in the field of college placement, Miss Gordon is acutely aware of the vicissitudes of the job market. "In the 1950's," she says, "there mainly was a demand for teachers and for people to work for the federal government. Then business and industry became the big employers. Right now, the demands are in computer science, accounting and engineering. But the teaching field is also experiencing an upturn, particularly in the demand for teachers in science and in English." Going against the conventional wisdom, she is quite optimistic about the employment opportunities for graduates of liberal arts in institutions such as MWC. "Jobs are out there for anybody who is looking," she says, "provided the person doesn't have too many stipulations about geographic area. Right now we have a list of some 3,000 employers."

Despite her lengthy tenure in her position, Miss Gordon retains her enthusiasm, approaching her job with wit and good cheer, and always with a keen understanding of the anxieties felt by the students whom she is endeavoring to assist. The rewards, she feels, are significant. "The most satisfying thing is the fact that you feel you are helping people—the seniors and the alumni—in trying to find a job or in applying to graduate school. It's gratifying to see people years later after you have helped them, and they thank you," she reflects. "There is no other job at Mary Washington that I would rather have."

There are, no doubt, thousands of MWC alumni who, having been successfully launched into their careers through her efforts, are grateful that Isabel Gordon has felt that way.

Faculty Highlights

Clavio Ascari, professor of modern foreign languages, conducted a workshop at the 31st Annual Northeast Conference on the Teaching of Foreign Languages, which was held in New York City. His workshop, which was entitled "Symposium on the Italian Theatre," was tied to the Conference's theme, "The Challenge for Excellence in Foreign Language Education." Some 2,400 foreign language educators attended the meeting.

James D. Brodzinski, assistant professor of business administration, attended the meeting of the International Communication Association in San Francisco, where he presented a paper on employee assistance programs and supervisory communication. In addition, he contributed chapters to the three-volume work, Computer Packages and Research Design.

Steven L. Czarsty, then coordinator of the Master of Business Administration Program, attended the national meeting of the American Institute for Decision Sciences. Czarsty discussed his paper, "Identifying Winners and Losers in an Inflationary Economy." He also participated in a workshop on the academic and business use of microcomputers.

Daniel A. Dervin, professor of English, was a speaker at The Oxford Psycho-Analytical Forum in Oxford, England, where his lecture, "D. H. Lawrence and the Dynamics of Creativity," was presented to Oxford's Department of Experimental Psychology. In addition, his article "Orpheus and Eurydice: A Myth About Human Evolution," was published in a recent issue of The Journal of Psychoanalytic Anthropology; "Ingmar Bergman's Films: The Spider-God and the Primal Scene" was in the fall 1983 issue of American Imago. Dervin also signed a contract to write two books, and, moreover, was named one of 18 finalists in the New England Theatre Conference Contest to which he had submitted an original play.

Mildred Droste, associate professor of health and physical education, attended the 1984 National Summer Meeting of Mortar Board, Inc., in Boston. Serving as a national officer, Miss Droste holds the position of director of elections.

Lewis P. Fickett Jr., professor of political science, presented a paper entitled "Virginia: A Political Museum Piece Revisited" at the Symposium on Southern Politics held at the Citadel in Charleston, S.C. He also attended the Southeast Conference Association for Asian Studies at Emory University in Atlanta, where he presented another paper, "The Politics of Regionalism Revisited."

Martha V. Fickett, assistant professor of music, and Diane F. Hatch, associate professor of classics, attended summer seminars under the sponsorship of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Dr. Fickett participated in the NEH Summer Seminar for College Teachers on the Beethoven Symphonies at Harvard University. Dr. Hatch was also among those educators at Wellesley College's seminar, "Women in Antiquity: the Written Evidence."

Roy F. Gratz, associate professor of chemistry, had his paper, "New Thermoplastics Polyimides Containing a Trifluorophenylethylidene Linkage," published in the 1983 Final Report of the NASA-American Society for Engineering Education, Case Lewis Summer Faculty Fellowship Program.

Steven A. Greenlaw, instructor in economics, attended the conference, "World Debt and the Monetary Order," which was sponsored by the Cato Institute, a public policy research foundation. Many of the top international financial experts addressed the conference, which was held in Washington, D.C.

John M. Kramer, associate professor of political science, wrote the essay, "Environmental Problems in the USSR," which appeared in The Soviet Union Today, and the article, "The Environmental Crisis in Eastern Europe: The Price for Progress," which was published in Slavic Review. He also presented a paper entitled "Soviet Energy and Western Security" at the Naval Post-Graduate School in Monterey, Calif.

Richard J. Krickus, professor of political science, delivered a paper at a recent Conference of the British International Studies Association, which was held at the University of Birmingham. The paper, "Energy: The Soviet Union and Western Alliance," was co-authored with MWC's John M. Kramer.

John C. Manolis, associate professor of modern foreign languages, attended the Ninth Annual Conference on Literature and Film held in Tallahassee, Fla., where he presented a paper, "The Sea as Utopia in French Symbolist Poetry."

Shah M. Mehrabi and Anthony D. Apostolides, assistant professors of economics and Robert S. Rycroft, associate professor of economics, attended the Eastern Economic Association Convention in New York City. Rycroft presented a paper entitled "The Stability of Two Variants of the Andersen-Jordan Equation." Mehrabi discussed four papers during a session on "Economic Development." Mehrabi also attended two conferences on economics and discussed papers at both. At the 20th Annual Conference on the Missouri Valley Economic Association, he presented a paper entitled "The Financial Sector and Economic Development in Less Developed Countries: the Case of Afghanistan." At the 11th Annual Meeting of the Virginia Association of Economists, Mehrabi discussed "The Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund" during a session on "Tax Revenue Forecasting in Virginia."

Thomas G. Moeller, associate professor of psychology, attended a workshop, "Training Parents of Hyperactive Children Ages 2-10," which was held in Richmond, Va.

Denis Nissim-Sabat, associate professor of psychology, participated in the Sixth National Institute on the Teaching of Psychology to Undergraduates, which was held in Clearwater Beach, Fla. The conference examined the problems encountered in teaching general psychology. He also chaired a panel discussion at the Virginia Psychological Association meeting entitled "Teaching Psychology: Perspective for the Future." The meeting was held in Richmond, Va.

Richard P. Palmieri, associate professor of geography, curator of furniture, and then interim associate director of the Center for Historic Preservation, was named to the advisory board of Gunston Hall, former home of George Mason, father of the Bill of Rights. Gunston Hall, which is 20 miles south of Washington, D.C., is a National Historic Landmark.

John N. Pearce, then lecturer in historic preservation, spoke on "Classical Elegance in America" at the Decorative Arts Trust Symposium in Palm Beach, Fla., and lectured on "Historic Preservation: The Pleasure of the Past in the Present" at the Central Rappahannock Regional Library in Fredericksburg. He has also lectured on "In Search of Life in the Victorian Room" for the Decorative Arts Trust in Fredericksburg; "The Founding of Maryland: Facts and Traditions" for Anne Arundel Heritage, Inc., in Annapolis, Md.; "The Chesapeake Region," for The Friends of Winterthur on board The Independence near Coles Point, Va.; and "Images of Brookland," for the second annual Brookland Tour in Washington, D.C. He has had articles published recently in Chesapeake Country Life: "Rousby Hall in Southern Maryland"; "Plain Dealing: Keene, Albemarle County, Virginia"; and "A 'Spite' House ... That's All Serenity."

Aniano Pena, associate professor of modern foreign languages, attended the Modern Language Association's annual convention in New York City. A special seminar was devoted to his publications and was highlighted by his presentation of a paper, "Etnopsicologia. Vida y muerte de un idea" ("Ethnopsychology. Life and Death of an Idea").

Alice B. Rabson, professor of psychology, presented a paper, "Changing Roles: Men and Women from a Woman's Perspective," at the Teaching/Learning about Women Conference at Roanoke College. Jean Best-Franks, a student of Dr. Rabson's, delivered a paper, "Sex Roles in the Working Class Is a Conditioned Response."

Raman K. Singh, professor of English, was awarded a Fulbright grant to lecture at the University at Aleppo in Syria. Singh was one of 2,100 Americans being sent abroad for the 1984-85 academic year under the Fulbright exchange program. He also presented a paper on the Nigerian novelist, Chinua Achebe, at the Second International Colloquium on African Folklore in Budapest, Hungary.

Paul C. Slayton Jr., professor of education and chairperson of the Department of Education, participated as a delegate to the Virginia Jefferson Meeting on the Constitution held in Williamsburg, Va. Delegates assembled in order "to examine and reassess the institutions of American government" as the U.S. enters the third century under the Constitution. The meeting was co-sponsored by the Jefferson Foundation and the College of William and Mary.

Richard H. Warner, associate professor of history, was chosen to participate in summer academic work at three different universities. He spent two weeks at the Workshop for Russian and East European Studies at the University of Illinois where he gave a presentation on "The Navy of Peter the Great." Warner subsequently attended a four-week intensive course on computer applications in historical research at the Inter-University Consortium for Social and Political Research at the University of Michigan. His project focused on "The Naval Officer Corps of Peter the Great." Warner was one of five research fellows chosen to study at the Center for Slavic and East European Studies at Ohio State University and was also named a research associate for the Center for Russian and East European Studies at the University of Virginia.

Martin A. Wilder Jr., associate dean for admissions, was selected as a recipient of the Dean's Fellowship in the School of Education at the University of Virginia. The fellowship enables him to pursue doctoral work at the school's Center for the Study of Higher Education.

Professors Janet F. Wishner and George M. Van Sant of the Department of Classics, Philosophy and Religion attended the 80th annual meeting of the Eastern Division of the American Philosophical Association in Boston. While at the meeting, Professor Van Sant presided at two sessions, "The Conference of Philosophical Societies" and a meeting of the Conference of Department Chairpersons on "Computers and the Philosophy Department." Van Sant completed his second year as chairperson of the latter group.

Events on Campus

It was a busy semester on campus with a diverse and talented collection of distinguished scientists, artists, professors and writers sharing their experiences and knowledge with the College community, adding another dimension to the educational process at MWC.

JANUARY

Fittingly, the College began the New Year 1984 by announcing that a series of public lectures would be held in the spring: "George Orwell: An Honest Man in a Mad World" . . . David R. Clark, professor of English at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, lectured on "Yeats' Dragons" and included a slide presentation on the influence of painting on the poet's work . . .

FEBRUARY

As part of Black History Month, Paul Robeson Jr., son of the late Broadway star and international celebrity, lectured on "With Malice Toward One: The Secret War Against Paul Robeson" . . . "Unforgettable Fire," an exhibit of 25 full-color reproductions of showings by A-Bomb survivors and their own commentaries, was shown by the Campus Nuclear Study Group . . . The MWC Faculty Lecture Series began the second semester with Professor Joseph Vance's "Washington's Ancestors in America" . . . Two well-known, award-winning poets, Amy Clampitt and Pattiann Rogers, gave readings on campus . . . Student artists were featured in a Student Watercolor Exhibit, which included works from the Experimental Watercolor Class . . . Belmont, the Gari Melchers Memorial Gallery, announced the opening of "Melchers in Holland," its first exhibition devoted entirely to the artist's work produced during his 25-year Dutch residency . . . Guest speaker Dr. John Cairns, professor of biology at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, lectured on "Determining the Ecological Hazards of Chemicals" . . . "Is the Beale Cipher a Hoax or Worth $10,000,000?" was Dr. Carl Hammer's topic as part of the Mathematical Association of America's Program of Visiting Lecturers. He is the retired director of Computer Sciences at Sperry Univac . . . Rosemary Ingham served as the guest costume designer for the Department of Dramatic Arts and Dance's production of Oscar Wilde's classic farce, "The Importance of Being Earnest."

MARCH

The Mathews-Masters Dance Co., a modern dance troupe from N.Y.C., performed on campus . . . Jimmy Faulkner, nephew of author William Faulkner, and Dr. Jo Marshall, professor of literature at Jefferson State Junior College in Alabama, showed a slide presentation, "Knowing William Faulkner" . . . Emmy Award winner and television writer Richard Camp delivered a lecture as part of MWC's poetry-fiction series . . . The REACH program brought MASH weekend to campus. With the theme borrowed from the popular TV series, events included a look-alike contest, the original "MASH" movie, and even a tent-raising contest . . . For the younger set, the Department of Dramatic Arts and Dance presented the children's play, "The Thwarting of Baron Bolligrew" . . .

APRIL

"The Lighter Side 2," an evening of light and popular choral music, featured the Fredericksburg Singers, the Mary Washington College Chorus, the MWC Singers, and the Jazz Ensemble . . . The Annual Student Art Show in the duPont Galleries included the dedication of one of the galleries to Dorothy Van Winckel, late professor emeritus . . . At Belmont, Dr. Ronald van Vleuten, a native of Egmond aan den Hoef, Holland, presented a slide lecture on Gari Melchers' artistic career during the period of his life in that Dutch community . . . Dr. Mary Gray, chairperson of American University's Department of Mathematics, Statistics, and Computer Science, lectured on "Sex and Mathematics" . . . Another of the guest lecturers during April was Dr. Dewey McLean, professor of geology at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, whose topic was "Asteroid Impacts? New Evidence on the Causes of Extinctions in Earth History."

Spring Sports Roundup

by Terry Bonner

In varying degrees, each of Mary Washington's intercollegiate athletic teams enjoyed a successful spring season. The most notably successful was the women's tennis team. Led by two-time All-American Deanne Wardman, the squad won its third consecutive fourth-place finish in the NCAA National Championship Tournament. Following a regular season dual-match record of 21 wins and only four losses, the team's success in the tournament capped what Coach Ed Hegmann described as "a most successful season in terms of reaching our potential."

Coach Hegmann singled out for special praise the three seniors who closed their college careers at the national tournament: Wardman, Jaime Rund and Julie Collins. Wardman ended her career with 119 victories (the most of any player in MWC history) and also earned her second All-American award, thus becoming the College's only double All-American. Rund, who achieved All-American status as a sophomore member of MWC's 1982 national AIAW championship team, finished her college career with 117 match victories, placing her second behind Wardman in total career victories.

The men's tennis team did not fare quite so well, finishing with a 7-9 record, slightly below the .500 level reached during the past two seasons. Dan Wolfe, playing at number two singles, closed his collegiate career with a 9-6 mark for the year. Other winning records over the season were achieved by sophomore Kevin Shea (9-5 at number four) and freshman Ken Brady (8-7 at number six).

Leading the women's track team were runners Martha Forsyth, a sophomore, and Marlene Moreno, a junior. Both runners finished outstanding seasons in 1984 by qualifying for trips to the NCAA Division III meet, where they acquitted themselves with distinction in a very strong field, barely missing All-American recognition.

The men's track team was highlighted by Dave Modrak, who became the College's first four-year participant in both cross-country during the fall season and track in the spring. Track Coach Rick Wagenaar calculated that Modrak had run 7,000 miles while training for his four seasons of intercollegiate competition.

The lacrosse team won a post-season bid for the first time in its history when it gained a berth in the Eastern College Athletic Conference's Mid-Atlantic Tournament. Although the team was eliminated in the semi-finals by host team and eventual champion Cortland (N.Y.) State University, Dede McGuinness, a senior, won All-Tournament honors for her play. With five players scoring over 20 goals apiece, this season's lacrosse team was one of the highest scoring ever at Mary Washington. Senior Trish Long, also a high-scoring star of the women's basketball team, led the team with 29 goals, while another senior, Cathy Collier, added 20.

The golf team, a coed group, was led by Chris Uthe, a senior who had paced his MWC team in 41 of its 46 matches during his career. The team completed its best season ever (7-8 in dual matches) by playing for the first time in the College Division of the Virginia Intercollegiate Championship, which was held at the Lower Cascades Course at Hot Springs, Va.

The performances of the spring sports teams give a clear indication of the ever-increasing prowess of the College's student athletes and the success of its intercollegiate sports program.

Terry Bonner is Sports Information Director at MWC.

Alumni-Student Recruitment Team

Even if graduation has been several years ago, and if the distance between home and campus is thousands of miles, alumni can still contribute significantly to the welfare of the College by joining the Alumni-Student Recruitment Team.

According to Jenifer L. Blair '82, assistant dean of admissions and financial aid, who is serving as alumni-student recruitment coordinator, alumni throughout the United States are serving the College significantly by providing volunteer assistance in the recruitment of students within their own localities. The basic purpose of the Alumni-Student Recruitment Team, according to Ms. Blair, is to encourage and assist alumni in their efforts to introduce Mary Washington College to outstanding high school students as well as to their parents and guidance counselors. "The entire objective," she says, "is to seek qualified students for MWC who may not have otherwise considered the College."

Although the extent of the volunteer recruiter's activities is, of course, at the discretion of the individual, there are a number of different ways in which assistance can be provided, including:

- identifying potential MWC students and referring them to the Office of Admissions and Financial Aid
- encouraging candidates for MWC by telephoning those students who have been offered admission
- helping with student receptions in the spring and summer
- assisting with College programs—e.g., distributing materials and talking with students about the College
- offering to assist high school guidance counselors by serving as a source of information about MWC

The concept of alumni assistance with recruitment is not a new one at Mary Washington. Many have provided such assistance for a number of years on an informal basis. For example, Mrs. Phyllis "Bee" Shanahan '55, has represented MWC frequently over the past years at college fairs in her home area of Long Island, N.Y.

It is only recently, however, that the process of alumni assistance in recruitment has been formalized through the establishment of the Alumni-Student Recruitment Team. Through this effort, the volunteer recruiter receives guidance on how to do the job most effectively. For example, the alumnus is given a detailed Alumni-Student Recruitment Handbook, which contains up-to-date information concerning a wide range of social and academic matters at the College, such as what degree programs are offered, what extracurricular activities are available, and what the current male-to-female ratio is (incidentally, it's 1-to-4). In addition, all alumni recruiters are invited to a day-long workshop in the fall where Ms. Blair and other staff members are present to answer questions and to provide further information concerning recruitment activities.

Working with Ms. Blair on the Alumni-Student Recruitment Team project are Mrs. Liz Muirheid Sudduth '69, who serves as chairman for the Alumni-Student Recruitment Program of the Alumni Association, and the staffs of the Alumni and Admissions Offices. (Beginning this fall, Merrilyn Sawyer Dodson '68 will take over as chairman for the Alumni-Student Recruitment Program.) According to Mrs. Sudduth, the program has grown appreciably during the past two years, both in terms of the number of volunteer recruiters and in terms of chapter involvement. Particularly active in student recruitment have been the chapters in Richmond, Roanoke, the Peninsula and Tidewater regions of Virginia, the Washington, D.C., area, and Baltimore, Md. The Washington, D.C., Metropolitan Chapter, for example, has held receptions at Wolf Trap Farm Park attended by as many as 500 students who have been offered admission to the College. Such efforts have evidently borne results, as many students who have enrolled in the College have commented that their decision was affected positively by their contacts with alumni.

Long-range goals for Alumni-Student Recruitment include attracting more alumni volunteers (particularly those who can assist with minority recruitment) and bringing more of the volunteer recruiters to the fall recruitment workshop. Both Ms. Blair and Mrs. Sudduth agree that the program is rewarding both to the College and to the alumni recruiter. "It's exciting to be involved with student recruitment," says Ms. Blair, "especially when you can see such a positive result from your efforts in helping to attract outstanding students to your alma mater." She encourages alumni to contact her by mail or telephone (703-899-4681) with any questions, ideas or suggestions concerning the Alumni-Student Recruitment Team. Volunteers are invited to use the response card in this magazine.

friends and with the Empress Hotel in Victoria, British Columbia, the Carters sailed as far north as Juneau and into Glacier Bay National Park, which Carter describes as "awesome."

Back in Fredericksburg, sandwiched between his archaeological and ministerial concerns and his duties as a member of the board of directors of the Fredericksburg Personal Counseling Service, the more typical retirement activities also demand Carter's attention—household chores, gardening, and that perennial task of all teachers, sorting books. With boxes of books piled in his basement since his retirement, Carter began sifting through them last winter, building new shelves for some and boxing others to donate to the sociology department's collection on campus.

While he misses the collegial contacts with other faculty members and the classroom exchange with students, Carter says he's really too busy to miss his 34-year teaching career. Besides, his contacts with the College are far from severed. In addition to giving occasional lectures to sociology classes, he drops in to visit his colleagues now and then, attends many College functions, and keeps close tabs on College activities from his home, not 30 yards from the College gates.

"I enjoyed my career at the College very much," Carter says, "but at this time in my life, it's nice to be able to walk in to the College and walk out again."

munity. Mary Ellen Stephenson will not retire because, as she says, there is always a need to serve, and she will not stop to twiddle her thumbs.

Editor's Note: Many alumni donated to a special book fund in Miss Stephenson's honor when she retired. The acquisition of language books for E. Lee Trinkle Library has proceeded slowly and carefully with the fund enabling the Department of Modern Foreign Languages to make purchases which otherwise would not have been possible.

Linda Burch is a senior in the Bachelor of Liberal Studies Program. A wife and mother, she is also a laboratory technician at Mary Washington Hospital.

Chapter News

DELAWARE CHAPTER

The Delaware Chapter held its annual pot luck supper on March 30, 1984, at the home of Shelly Cohen Mand '59. Dr. and Mrs. William M. Anderson Jr. were the guests of honor. Over 40 alumni and spouses attended and heard Dr. Anderson speak on "The Future of Mary Washington College."

The Chapter draws its members from Delaware and Southeastern Pennsylvania. Interested alumni are urged to contact Shelly at 715 Bristol Road, Wilmington, DE 19803.

FREDERICKSBURG CHAPTER

The Fredericksburg Chapter is again completing a very active year. Beginning with our fall membership luncheon on the lawn at Trench Hill, the Chapter has been involved in numerous social and service projects relating to MWC. In October we delivered balloons to students for Halloween; in December we packed and delivered survival kits and held a Christmas party for chapter members, families and friends; in February we delivered Valentine's roses; and in spring we packed survival kits again. Throughout the year the Chapter provided family-ordered birthday cakes to students. Our fund-raising activities enabled the Chapter to make a $4,000 donation to the MWC Foundation. In between these projects, we helped to host cocktail parties for the Board of Visitors and the Alumni Board. We also held a luncheon for the Golden Club. The Chapter sponsored workshops once a month, calling on various alumni to conduct them. For the fourth successive year, the Chapter sponsored the Homecoming Party/Dance in the Lee Hall Ballroom during Homecoming Weekend. Many members were also volunteers, working to help things run smoothly during the weekend. A special thanks to Alice Schermerhorn Raines '78 and Suzanne Smithson Hall '75 for everything they did.

PENINSULA CHAPTER

The Peninsula Chapter continues with the guiding purpose it has followed for more than 40 years: to serve the College, to strengthen ties between the College and the alums as well as among the alums themselves. A number of our members are serving in capacities beyond the Chapter level: Gwen Amory Cumming and Sylvia McJilton Woodcock, Board of Visitors; Anne Daniel Fowler, National Alumni Association Board of Directors; Clara Boyd Wheeler and Irene Lundy Brown, Foundation Board.

In the spring of 1983 the Peninsula Chapter held an auction-fashion show which resulted in a contribution of nearly $1,300 to the Regional Scholarship Fund. Fifteen Chapter members attended the 75th Anniversary Convocation on March 14, 1983. Most were representing their classes.

The Peninsula Chapter has about six meetings per year. We gave a party in August for new and returning students; planned a dinner in October where Sylvia Woodcock, Board of Visitors, Dan Steen, Student Association, and Bobbie Burton, Alumni Office, updated us on College happenings; held a joint meeting with Tidewater Chapter in January; arranged a reception in March to honor Dr. William M. Anderson Jr. and his wife and to introduce them to the Peninsula area; sponsored an April reception for high school students who had been offered admission to MWC and where they met with MWC representatives; and in May we had a luncheon with Dr. Donald Glover, professor of English at MWC, as our speaker.

Credential Files

The Office of Career Placement Services needs to clean house. In order to create space and continue providing the finest possible career placement services to our graduates, a new credential file retention plan has been developed.

A credential file will remain active for one year from the date of graduation or, in the case of alumni, for one year from the date of establishing the file. At the end of this one-year period, the credential file will be placed in the inactive category unless a request is made that the file remain active for another year. Inactive files will be retained for 10 years, at which point they will be destroyed unless a request is made that the file be retained, or unless some file activity occurs. A file may be reactivated at any time during this 10-year period. An updated resume, recent letters of recommendation, and transcripts of coursework taken since graduation must be submitted at the time of file reactivation.

Should you wish to reactivate your file, please send the appropriate materials to the Office of Career Placement Services as soon as possible. Also include your name, maiden name if applicable, address, date graduated, major and telephone number. Return to: Office of Career Placement Services Box 1003, College Station Fredericksburg, VA 22402

While on Vacation . . .

You are invited to visit Trench Hill, the new home of the Alumni Association, when you are passing through Fredericksburg. The building is open Monday-Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. (and there is a good chance that you will find someone there most weekends, too).

You can count on finding friendly faces, plenty of information about the College and Fredericksburg, and a cold drink!

Bring your family and/or friends and enjoy, again, our beautiful campus.

Mrs. Nancy Oliver Foster
P.O. Box 93
Irvington, VA 22480

Nancy Oliver Foster is now walking with a walker as a result of a broken hip in 1982. She apologizes for not having had news in the past couple of issues. She writes that Helen Phillips is well except for her knees.

1915

Ruth Carter Vellines

Glen Allen, VA 23060

Haven't heard much news from you in recent months, so have very little to report. Nannie Page Burruss is a resident at Virginia Baptist Home in Culpeper, Va. Even though her vision is not too good, she helps other residents read letters and periodicals. She returns to her home occasionally and helps with the cooking. This is one chore which she really enjoys.

Alva Birmingham will be 84 her next birthday. Has a nice little home in Annandale, Va., but is unable to drive because of poor vision. She occupies her days with writing letters, working puzzles, etc. She has a pet that keeps her busy and takes a great deal of her time.

Elsie Wood Rice, Class of 1915, has a letter from Margaret Sayre Ransone of Hampton, Va. Said she is getting on fine. Had not heard from her in a long time. She stays busy with her literacy work among foreign-born refugees in the Peninsula area. Elsie Rice keeps up with current college news by reading The Free Lance-Star, the Fredericksburg newspaper. Sends me news clippings of interest at various times. She spends a lot of her time visiting and helping her daughter-in-law's mother, who lives nearby and recently had a cataract operation. Elsie likes to read, write letters, send cards to friends and shut-ins, and help people who are sick and shut-in. She is a real "good Samaritan." She has several granddaughters; some of them are visiting in the home at one time or another.

I celebrated my 95th birthday on January 2 of this year. My daughter, Virginia, with whom I make my home, had a lovely birthday dinner in my honor. All of my children and several grandchildren and their families were present for the occasion. I had telephone calls and visits all day from nieces and nephews and many friends in the church and community.

I have just recently returned from a two months' stay in Roanoke, Va., with my step-daughter, Harriet Cunningham. She was so kind and thoughtful in looking after my personal needs and preparing food that she thought I would enjoy. Since I have returned home, I have a practical nurse who comes in each day to help look after me. I don't get out to many meetings at present. Maybe when the weather is warmer, I will be able to get out more. My nephew, Garnett Haynes, who used to take me to all my club meetings, had a stroke last June and is unable to drive now. I did attend the Woman's Club meeting on February 28 at my daughter Ann's home in Doswell, Va. It was good to see so many of my friends from that area again, as I had only attended one other meeting last fall. I spend my days reading and writing notes and sending cards to friends and shut-ins. It isn't easy, as I have lost the sight in my right eye and have to use a magnifying glass at all times.

It would be good to hear from each of you. I enjoy getting mail.

You missed a beautiful, delightful trip when you did not go on the MWC-sponsored Scandinavian Tour last year. Those 14 days were a perfect time to be out of the heat and humidity of the East Coast. Our group of 15 included five couples who signed up through Virginia Tech. Isabel Burrus Grizzard '35 was with her husband, Berkely. They now live in Roanoke Rapids, N.C.

Louise Gordon Davies took a European tour about a year ago. I have a granddaughter, Alison Hall, who was a freshman at MWC this year.

Emily Thurston Llewellyn is to be congratulated for her faithfulness to our Alma Mater and our "Class Notes" readers. At the Christmas season, Emily sent me a beautiful Christmas card and enclosed a "newsy letter." I surely am grateful to her.

Camilla Payne was back "home" in Richmond for the holidays. Camilla travels so much it is rather difficult to keep up with her. The alumnae in Richmond always welcome her home.

Lucille Sutton Wright is now at home recuperating after a stay at the hospital. Please send Lucille a card. Let's make each other happy.

Hannah Hall visited her sisters in Richmond for the Thanksgiving holiday. Some of you may recall Hannah's sister, Eleonora, was also at MWC when we were seniors.

Lucille Duffy Conovich wrote from San Francisco, having spent the summer of '83 on a most enjoyable trip through California.

Ruby Lee Norris is married to Vernon Norris. She is Virginia state chairman of the Communications Committee of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International and has organized a literary publication of creative writing by members. This is in celebration of the 50th anniversary of Delta Kappa Gamma in Virginia. Congratulations!

The Mary Washington College Alumni Association, Peninsula Chapter, gave a reception in honor of Dr. William M. Anderson Jr., president of MWC, and Mrs. Anderson on Sunday, March 11, at the James River County Club to introduce them to our area. The reception was very well attended. Among those present were Edna Daniel Sheaks, Doris Mills Haven, '37, Dorothy Bevard Owen '37, and Irene Lundy Brown '39, who were accompanied by their husbands. Also Olivia (Bill) Wheeler McCallum and Clara Boyd Wheeler '31.

Vernie Blankenship Knight was the piano accompanist for two of her grandchildren's music competition in February. All of her family were together for Thanksgiving at their cottage on the Rappahannock River. My seat mate on the train the day before Thanksgiving (I had boarded in Newport News) from Alexandria to Washington told me she lived in Alexandria and that she went to the same church Vernie and her husband attend. Vernie and Bus walk at least a mile every day, even in the coldest weather.

She sent me a page from the National Cathedral Association paper which showed a picture of Mary Frances Rowe Varner, co-chairman of the Washington Committee for the Cathedral Association. She was welcoming the new president of the National Cathedral Association, Dr. John McTigue. We are proud of the gracious and efficient manner in which Mary Frances serves the visiting dignitaries in our nation's capital. Mary Frances and Dave had a wonderful vacation in France last year. She said she was amazed that her French could be understood. They spent Christmas in Atlanta with her brother and his family. Her mother, a graduate of the Class of 1915, died in April 1983. She was active almost to the end and able to stay in her apartment.

Edna Harley Sickels has one grandchild, four years old. His mother is Edna's daughter, and they were with Edna and her husband for Christmas. Edna says they continue to be well and very busy.

Page Whitehead Hladky planned a visit in May to see her son and his family in Cambridge, England. She had a three-week trip to New Jersey last fall and also a two-week visit with friends in North and South Carolina.

Adelle Mansfield Goodwin wrote that her family was with them for Thanksgiving—a full house.

Flora Ryan Durgin '38 still works as a home health aide 23 hours a week and as a volunteer in a hospice.

Dorothy McGuire Bunch is an expert at quilting and makes the most beautiful quilts! I saw the quilts in January, and Dorothy says she loves to make them.

Susie Dickinson Hudson sent me a lovely picture of her daughter, Betty Sue, and her two children, Elizabeth, 2½, and Will, six months old. They live five blocks from Susie and her husband. Daughter Harriette and her husband were with them for Christmas. They live in Atlanta.

Bill Wheeler McCallum has helped me today with this news. I also heard from Louise Jennings Creamer, Audrey Rose Burton, Lillian Nordstrom Love, and Frances Liebenow Armstrong. I extend my thanks to all of you who sent me Christmas cards. Our 50th Reunion is in 1986. Remember Vernie's slogan: "50 for the 50!" It would be great to have even more come back! Please send me some news.

Thanks to all who have sent news for this issue!

Frances Sherman Spencer and husband, Clarence, of Monroe, Mo., left wintry weather behind to spend two months in McAllen, Texas, near the Mexican border. A smart move, I'd say.

Eloise Trussel Kousz writes from Glenolden, Pa., and enjoys many club and church activities as much as possible and is vice regent of her DAR chapter. However, her elderly aunt, Florence, who lives with her, has not been well and requires much care and attention. I enjoyed a phone chat with Eloise last fall.

Frances McLeod McIver, of San Francisco, wrote a long newsy letter before Christmas. We hope that by now she is fully recovered from a dental operation, involving abscessed teeth. Her last trip East was two years ago to visit son, Rod, and family in Burke, Va.; son, Bruce, and family in Tallahassee, Fla.; and kinfolk in Cheraw, S.C. Fran lost her husband, Roderick, several years ago and her mother, at the age of 100, in 1977. At the time of her death, she was the oldest living graduate of Converse College, Spartanburg, S.C. She has also lost a brother and sister since then, and we extend our belated sympathy.

When in New Bern, N.C., last summer, I tried to call Eleanor Sutton Heath; but she was at work. Sorry not to reach her. But she wrote before Christmas, with the news that she had knee surgery in August '83, which turned out fine. If all went as planned, she was to have an operation on the other knee in January. We surely hope that she has made a fine recovery this time too. Earlier in 1983, Eleanor lost her dear sister, Frances. Our deep and sincere sympathy to Eleanor, and I will try again to visit her when I visit my relatives nearby.

My daughter and I were in Florida for a few days last fall to visit Epcot Center and Disney World. Time was limited so I could not go on to Bradenton to see Lib Johnson Birtwell; however, I did call and talk to her. In a note before Christmas, Lib reported that her vision is much better, and doctors have been able to give medication to lessen her headaches. Our best wishes to you, Lib, for continued improvement. Lib has been so helpful to me in gathering news from our classmates.

While in Florida, I also called and talked to Olivia Kearns Clarke in Clearwater. She was quite surprised to hear from me after all these years. Again, time did not permit my going by to see her, but we enjoyed talking about our families, especially the grandchildren. Olivia is president of her Alpha Kappa Delta group.

Selma Piland Johnston, of Arlington, Va., and husband, James, were in the Norfolk-Suffolk area the last of January. Her sister-in-law was critically ill in a Norfolk hospital, and I visited with Selma for awhile in the lounge there. We did take advantage of the opportunity to chat in person. She and James enjoyed a tour of Italy and Sicily last fall.

Pauline King is still in Fredericksburg near Trench Hill. We extend our love and sympathy on the loss of her mother, Mrs. King, almost 99, last year.

It seems that my former roommate and I experienced our deep sorrows about the same time, for I lost my husband, Russell O. Ellington, in late August. He had been in the hospital most of the time since early spring. With the help of my friends and loved ones, I am getting along all right now.

I stay active in the Tidewater Chapter of MWC Alumni which meets bimonthly. In January, it was a big pleasure to have the new president of MWC, Dr. William M. Anderson Jr., and his wife attend a joint meeting of the Peninsula Chapter, Colgate Darden Chapter, and our Chapter here at the Omni Hotel. He brought us a fine message. Also attending were Doris Lindsey Whitfield, president of the MWC Alumni Association, and Bobbie Burton, director of alumni affairs, who spoke to our group of nearly 70.

Send in news NOW for our next MWC Today.

There was some question quite awhile ago about locating Margaret Graves '37. Julia Hartly Loving reported that she was killed tragically in 1939 by a passing motorist.

Christmas brings fewer and fewer cards. "Old Faithful" Skippy Milstead always comes through with news from Atlanta where four generations of Goodwins still put down roots. George and "Skip" spent two lovely months in France. George organized the 45th reunion of the Washington and Lee class of '39. "Skip" is still golfing and enjoying the grandchildren.

Dot Ballance Skinner writes that she would welcome a mini-reunion with her former classmates like the one we enjoyed two years ago in Williamsburg, Va. She had gotten together with Marguerite Crumley during the past year.

Mary Kettenbeck Gademan hosted Calvin and me as we made our annual trip to close the camp in Vermont before winter set in. She had returned from a trip to Germany. She has been active in the planning and supervision of housing for the elderly in Farmington, Conn. She is still an active golfer and enjoys grandmothering her two.

The Voris family had expanded by one in 1983 and will hopefully include a new son-in-law in 1984. We welcomed our third grandson in March and look forward to Sally's wedding in the summer. We took a turn at elderhosteling in 1983 and plan to do so again in 1984. We were surprised when daughter Jinny Batterson decided to accept a U. N. assignment in Burundi, Africa, for two years. We keep busy gardening, and I still substitute in elementary music when I feel like it. Our health has been good.

Flora Ryan Durgin keeps in touch. She stops by occasionally when in the area, and last time she and Frank Nash Young stayed for dinner.

I enjoyed getting the new directory and resolve to use it to get some more news for the column. Please help by sending your news along.

Virginia Cooley Stoner misses seeing Miriam Boyer Parsons now that Miriam has moved to Louisiana. "Cooley" has an antique business and, with her partner, recently did four shows in a month and had two more before November. The Stoners have five grandchildren.

Lucy Harris Stone and husband still are involved in the operation of their dairy farm. The Stones have granddaughters and recently acquired a grandson.

The husband of Stella Miles Hood, Horace Hood III, former vice president of the Times & World News in Roanoke, recently was given the Amateur of the Year Award by the Archaeological Society of Virginia. The award is given for outstanding effort on a continuing voluntary program of recording, excavating and interpreting archaeological sites in the state. Hood has located several prehistoric sites in the Roanoke area and was instrumental in getting the cooperation of landowners for surveys.

Miriam Carpenter Carroll visited Australia, New Zealand and Tahiti last summer. She was successful in contacting Elizabeth Dingus who has been "lost" to us for many years.

Mildred Williams toured Europe and has not decided which country or city she enjoyed the most.

Henrietta Echols and Gene spent several weeks in Florida last summer. One of their stops was in Englewood to spend an enjoyable evening with Bernice Shipple Camp. It will be so good to see her and all of you again.

Mary Bowles Hartley also did some travelling and flew off to Miami to see her new grandson.

Ruby Mallory Gibson has done some travelling aboard the Song of America, taking in Nassau, San Juan and St. Thomas.

1984 news includes Christmas cards, a visit from Virginia Johnson Moeller, and a trip to Florida.

Cards from: Nancy Inglis Russo - her daughter and granddaughter are living with them, and her daughter is going to school at Germanna. She will go to MWC next year. Nancy said Ann Clark Mann and Bill moved back to Fredericksburg last summer. Flora Copenhaver Scott - "great being with you at MWC." Betty Rogers Zylewitz - "Sorry to miss the reunion. Hope to be there next time!" Migit Gardner Snyder - "I'm off to the Caribbean for New Year's - Cheers!" From Mary Wallace Farr - "Edward and I moved to Crescent Valley, Nev., the first week in August." He is the pastor of a small Baptist church, the only one for 42 miles for the 300 people who work in the gold mines. Mary and Edward are home missionaries there.

Virginia Johnson Moeller retired from the federal government in January and stopped by Raleigh on a vacation to Florida. She also stopped to see Dorabelle. We had a wonderful "talking" evening.

My husband and I spent Christmas in Naples, Fla., with my sister; and I talked to Jerry Shepherd Copeland. They have been in Boca Raton 16 years, where her husband is a professor of math at Florida Atlantic University. She told me Ruthie Birchette Cheatham died in October. She also told me Margaret Williams Parker has a daughter and teaches in Miami in a junior high school. I also talked to Barbara Greve Carver. Her surgeon husband retired in June, and they took a trip to China and Japan. Her mother, 94, spends the winter with them in Hollywood, Fla., and returns to Michigan in the summer. Evelyn Sheads Appleton, who retired to Clearwater five years ago, had to return to the Washington area last May just prior to the reunion. Therefore, she wasn't able to return for the reunion. Her son is an electrical contractor there, and there are three grandchildren. The newest one is a granddaughter. Evelyn volunteers in a nearby school.

Ruth Henriques Johnson and her husband had a wonderful trip to Alaska in August. They flew up and then took the boat trip to see that fabulous scenery. Peg and Dick Logan had another wedding last summer. That makes five of their eight children married and 10 grandchildren. They "ran away" last summer to a school reunion in Dayville, Ore., to camp in Dinosaur National Park, to music concerts and opera in Sante Fe, and to the wedding in the Air Force Chapel, Colorado Springs, Colo.

We need news so we can keep you up to date. Let us hear from you.

Dorabelle wrote that she was delighted to hear from Geraldine Shepherd Copeland. She and Dick live in Boca Raton, Fla. They visited in Virginia in July and flew to Denver, then toured Colorado, Wyoming and Montana! They celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary on Jan. 1, 1984. Congratulations!

Natalie Moore Spears had minor surgery on Dec. 1, 1983. She is recuperating nicely.

Daphne Crump Rudilosso and Charlotte Grigg Watkins are both planning to retire in 1984.

Hilda Holloway Law and Bertha Dickinson Taylor and spouses met in Williamsburg, Va., to attend the Wrightsman Cup Tennis Tournament.

Dorabelle Forrest Cox spent a delightful week in Bermuda in November attending a Christian Fellowship Retreat.

From Jene: My roommate, Joyce Weed Butler, called me from Nashua, N.H. (I am not a good correspondent!) We talked about our families. Joyce had been to St. Louis to see her grandchildren. She teaches part-time and does secretarial work.

Jean Purviance Stephenson told me about her nephew, Tom Purviance, who is a concert pianist. He entertains on the Queen Elizabeth II while crossing the ocean and then gives concerts in Europe. Sounds like fun—and hard work!

My daughter, Billie Jene Bowman, and I were recently installed and ordained as deacons in the First Presbyterian Church.

From Mickey: Mildred (Mickey) Dixon Sullivan wrote that she enjoys her children and five grandchildren in Manassas and Richmond. She is taking jazzercise and playing tennis to "keep the aging body moving"!

Mickey said that several of our class met in Richmond last year at the home of Mim Riggs Gay. They had a delicious lunch and caught up on news. The following attended:

Nora Russell Dickens is a grandmother and works for a savings and loan company. Elizabeth Sullivan Vaughan has retired and travels with her husband and spends the winter months in Florida. She has two children and four grandchildren. Janice Worsley Mayberry has four boys; two sons were married last summer. Vivian M. Wilkerson is a pediatrician at Fort Lee, Va.

Virginia Baldwin is a psychiatrist.

Other news from Mickey included a letter from Elaine Jouard Collins who lives in Hawaii. She and her husband, retired U.S.M.C. Col. George Collins, just returned from a cruise aboard TV's "Love Boat," the Pacific Princess. This time they sailed the Asian Run.

Carolyn Rohr Huebner wrote that she and John again traveled to Nassau and also vacationed at their condo in Bethany Beach, Del. Daughter, Stephanie, attends Emory University and studied at Oxford University in England this past summer. Son, John Jr., is a senior at Bishop Ireton Prep. Carolyn is busy with church work and substituting in Alexandria City schools.

Jane Hayden Pastorious visited Carolyn. She has three lovely girls.

Susan Vick Warren and her husband, George, live in Wilson, N.C., where Susan teaches Spanish and French in a local high school. Their son, George III, a systems analyst with the Navy Department in D.C., was married in November at the beautiful Grand Canyon site where he and his wife, Carol, had worked in 1978. Their youngest son, Francis, is associated with Broyhill Furniture Industries and lives with his wife, Sara, in Lenoir, N.C.

Jene also writes that she received notes from Elizabeth Stallings Sharpe and Lynn Bennett Blackwell. Elizabeth and her husband, Coy, had a year of travelling. Coy was in Texas and California for conventions and visiting relatives. Elizabeth went to Georgia to attend her 40th high school reunion. She came to Buena Vista, Va., to attend the Intercollegiate National Horse Show where the William Russell Walther Sr. Trophy was presented in honor of the former riding instructor at MWC. She said it was great to see Mr. Walther and former classmates: Ann Briester Robertson, Louise Boyer McKenna, Ruth Hurley Nicholson, Anne Everett Mish, Lorena Dawson Mills, Betty Waite Whitehurst and Jean Thomas Lucas.

Elizabeth went on to White Stone to visit with Ann and stopped by Crozier to see Ann's father, who is 90 years old.

Lynn's daughter, Lisa, graduated from Salem College in West Virginia; and son, Guy III, is with a securities company in N.Y.C. Her grandson, Shawn, is in first grade and is quite a math whiz! Lynn and husband, Guy, spent Christmas vacation at Miami Beach.

I can now join the "Grandmother's Club"! My first, a little grandson named William Doyle Bowman (daughter Billie Jene), was born Nov. 30, 1983. He is the first boy in four generations on my side. Naturally, I am spoiling him!

Anne Martin Smith writes from Petersburg that she has a second grandchild, a boy born to her son and wife on July 20, 1983. They already have a daughter, five years old. Anne's daughter was married in January of 1982 and resides in Roanoke. Anne and husband, Jimmy, live in Petersburg, Va.

So very nice to hear from Joan Goode Betts; she and her husband, John, live in San Gabriel, Calif. Joan teaches the sixth grade and is president of the Alhambra Teachers Association.

Martha Warriner Dodson and her dentist husband, Barham, have four children and live in Franklin, Va. Martha and one of her daughters have a craft business and show their treasures in Virginia and North Carolina. Look for them at various craft festivals.

There were many classmates at our reunion last year about whom I don't feel sufficiently secure "factwise" to write, so please, good friends out there, send me a line.

From June Davis McCormick: A note from Gwen Brubaker Connell says that she and husband are in Cape Coral, Fla. They have four children, all married, with eight grandchildren. She is presently a real estate broker of Newton Associates. She says she would enjoy hearing from old Mary Washington friends.

In our last Class Notes (Fall '83) we asked your help in locating a lengthy list of '49ers for whom the computer printout reads "address unknown." Bless those who responded to that plea. Jo Bettye Estes Shelor '50 sent a Grosse Pointe, Mich., address for Martha Moeschler Brandon with whom she attended high school in Roanoke, Va., before both climbed Sunken Road to Marye's Heights. From Roanoke also came an unsigned card giving a Cumberland, R.I., address for Jo Wilson Hiers. Thanks to whom-ever!

Mechanicsville, Iowa, is home to Virginia Wilson Woods who sent Gwen Brubaker Connell's address in Cape Coral, Fla. Virginia was a '49er for two years and regrets the demands of several farms preclude a springtime reunion. Another two-year classmate, Pat Logan Macqueene, in Carlisle, Mass., seeks further info on Vi Wells Shipley especially on behalf of Betty Robinson, Lee Porter and Margie Moises, all of whom have lost touch with Vi since suite-mate days in Virginia Hall.

Joan Timberlake sent a press release about her book, Image Consulting: The New Career, published last fall by Acropolis Books Ltd., in D.C. And that's all she wrote . . . to me.

After executing her reunion questionnaire in South Amboy, N.J., Sally Potter Rauth said she felt "like a throw-back to the days before Carrie Nation"!

Last summer also was "mini-reunion" time for Anne McCaskill Libis and her senior roommate, Peggy Elliott Sweeney. "Miami," Claude, and their daughter, Claudia, shared two weeks in August with Peggy, Mickey, and daughter, Chris, at Rangely Lake in Maine. "Miami" related all the fun they had sailing, hiking, and recapping Peggy and Chris' tour of Spain, adding that Maine was lovely, cool, and a respite from a hot summer.

Special thanks to those who sent missing addresses and those who returned questionnaires to be compiled in our Reunion Booklet. I only wish more of you had submitted yours for a complete summary of the unique '49ers.

Carol Bailey Miller's son, Bill III, was married and will be living in Leesburg, Va. Carol also reported on her horse show judging trip to Sun Valley. It was a two-day show; but she also enjoyed a five-mile trail ride, feeling like a cowboy on a working horse with a western saddle complete with pack, water bottle, etc.

Anne "Ozzie" Osborn Cox, of Plantation, Fla., was pleased to be able to get together with Carmen Zeppenfeldt Catoni who was visiting nearby. They had lunch and a great reunion—their first in 33 years.

A lovely picture of Gerry Boswell Griffin and family arrived, taken at her daughter Judy's wedding in Atlanta last May. She and her new husband both graduated from Presbyterian College this spring. Gerry's son, David, just entered West Georgia College in Carrollton. When they took David to "move in" to college, Gerry had a nice visit with Lucille Schoolcraft Townsend whose husband, Maurice, is president of West Georgia.

Was sorry to hear that Gracia Plyley Kather's father died in November, and we send our sympathy to Gracia.

Please don't forget to keep in touch.

Betty Gavett Breeden and Joe, in Kansas, made a trip to California in August to visit family. Four of their offspring are in the San Diego area and two in the L.A. area. They also met their new grandson, Nathanael Joseph, who at that time was eight months old. Joe is still teaching at Kansas Wesleyan and Betty is employed by the Presbytery of Northern Kansas.

While on their way to Ohio to visit their daughter, who opened a restaurant in Marietta, Rachel Nickey Morgenthaler and Skip visited with Barbara Lloyd Hiller and Jim at their cabin in West Virginia.

Rosemary Miller in Benzonia, Mich., is hoping to make our reunion in 1985. She has officially retired from teaching but is now working as a church secretary, sings in the choir, and plays in the local orchestra.

Having a daughter at MWC gets Charlotte Leonard Wilder and family down to campus from Wheaton, Md. Jennifer is a music/psychology major.

In Jacksonville, Fla., Clelia Boushee Bulard reports that their third daughter will be married in June and daughter number four has just started her master's degree in nursing.

Although both boys are away to school, Martha Carr Huddleston doesn't find life dull. She has been transferred to a new elementary school, is senior leader for the DAR, and will be her DAR chapter's regent for the next three years. Jon is in his first year of law school at William and Mary, and Sam is a junior at East Carolina.

1983 was a year of renewing MWC friendships for Helen Hopkins Timberlake. On Easter morning she received an airport phone call from Patti Head Ferguson saying she was back in the U.S. and that Glenn is associated with the Lincoln Center. Then in May Janey Gardner Mallory and Bill stayed with Helen and Neal in Dallas while attending their daughter Suzie's graduation from Southern Methodist. While the Timberlakes were in the D.C. area in June, they lunched at Hogate's with Marcy Weatherley Morris and Juney and Anne Byrd Pilcher and Arnold. Anne and Marcy hadn't seen each other in 30 years. What a reunion!

Was sorry to hear of the death in an automobile accident of Shirley Cole Schleter's mother, and we extend our deepest sympathy. On the happier side, she and John have purchased 1¼ acres on Currituck Sound on the Outer Banks of North Carolina. They were looking toward retirement and to an April trip with their son, Chris, to spend 12 days in Austria, Switzerland and Germany.

Well, that depletes my news—I'll need more for the next issue, and once again I'm asking for your help. Did you move, change jobs, retire, or have a new grandchild? Please share the news with us. How about all of you whose maiden names begin in the A-M portion of the alphabet writing me a note? It just takes a minute. Don't depend on the other gals to supply the news. Please surprise me, and my next column will show how well you did. Remember 35th Reunion in 1985!

Marge Southcott Graham writes that she belongs to a local area MWC alumni chapter in Raleigh, N.C., which meets twice a year. She says it's an interesting group of some 15 women who represent a wide range of classes from 1922 to 1983. Writes Marge: "If anyone is now living in Raleigh, we welcome them to join us for a pot luck supper spring and fall. Doris Lindsey Whitfield '53, president of the Alumni Association of MWC, is a member here, too."

As for her own family, Marge and her husband, Jerry, have lived in Michigan, Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania over the years before moving to Raleigh where Jerry started Graham Electronics, Inc. Marge says Raleigh is the place to live. She loves it. She also wrote that she attended an Itzhak Perlman concert and "we could see his every expression and string—one broke—as he played."

Marge had loads of news about other Class of '51 members. For instance, Anne Ruggles Curfman still lives in Hampton, Va., with her husband, Howard, who is retired from NASA and now is doing consulting work. They are busy travelers with recent trips to Hawaii and Barbados. The Curfmans have three grandchildren to their credit.

Hannah Lou Southwell McGowan and her husband, Charlie, toured Ireland last year. They have two grown sons; one is now married.

Genie Cheney is living in New Hampshire. Her husband is a retired Army general.

Jean Tomko Chapman and Sonny are grandparents. And here's what Marge had to say about herself and the above-mentioned girls:

"We five roommates and suitemates, McGowan, Chapman, Curfman, Cheney and Graham all reunited at MWC for the 30th reunion. We had a marvelous time the whole weekend together, every minute. The husbands got along beautifully and enjoyed watching us have such a great time."

Marge had some more news. It seems Jeanne Burckell MacDonald might be living in North Carolina somewhere after spending some years in Virginia. And Carolyn Bowers Atwell and her husband, Paul, have two daughters and now live in Morganton, N.C.

Thanks for the news, Marge, and a thanks to Betsy Fletcher Adams of Boyds, Md., for the following update on her family. Betsy says her four girls are grown. Leslie lives in Houston and is an hydrologist. Margaret, a geologist, is working on her master's at the University of Maryland. Ann has been accepted at the University of Virginia for graduate work in bio medicine, and Jenny plays varsity field hockey and soccer in high school. Writes Betsy: "Bill works for Bechtel Corp., and I stay home trying to keep everyone heading in the right direction. We still have our horses, raise a few, and just enjoy them. The rest of the family includes seven horses, various cats and dogs."

Marge and Betsy sent me their news at Christmas and left me with this thought: Anyone of the Class of '51 who sends out Christmas newsletters, please add me to your mailing list. It's a wonderful time of year to hear from all of you. But I hasten to add, write anytime the spirit moves you. Bring me up to date on you and yours.

Good news for spring! Carolyn Spenser Buchanan sent a lovely letter from California, catching us up to date. In 1952 she married Clifton Buchanan, U. of Tenn. '50, and they have three children, Elizabeth, Carol Lynne and Clifton III. The girls are happily married and have children, while Clifton III is an observer for the National Marine Fisheries Service. At present he's aboard a Japanese fishing vessel in the Shelikof Strait between Kodiak Island and the mainland. Don't our children lead fascinating lives these days? Carolyn's address is Mrs. Clifton Buchanan, 206 Garfield, Placentia, CA 92670.

Our sad news is that Barbara "Bobbie" Burgess Wassell lost her husband, Jim, to cancer on Nov. 6, 1983. Jim was buried in Arlington, so several of us including Elizabeth "Betty" Coyle Buck were there to offer love and support. Bobbie has three lovely daughters; the youngest of them is attending Sweet Briar. Letters can be addressed to Mrs. James W. Wassell, Box 107, Hope, NJ 07844.

In late summer Phoebe Wilson Sherwood called me, and we had a great chat. Jackie Bobbin Blanchet had sent her a newspaper clipping about the State Department's new Chief of Protocol—Selwa Showker Roosevelt. Since Mrs. Roosevelt is from Knoxville, Tenn., graduated from Vassar in 1950, and looks very much like our Kay, we wonder if they are sisters! Our mystery for the month!

Don't forget the computer printout I have with our classmates' names and addresses. They are not all there, but I might be able to help someone find a "long lost" buddy.

And, last but not least, Ward and I have another granddaughter! Our daughter, Dana deGroot Grobicki '77, had her first baby Sept. 8, 1983. Dana and Tom live in Columbia, Md., so we get to see them fairly often.

Please send in your news. We'd all love to hear what everyone is doing.

We had some nice responses to our holiday newsletter-report on Homecoming 1983. I had cards from Becky Spitzer Harvill, Janet Galloway Carter, and Peggy Chapman Warren who says "Hi" to you all. A card, too, from Pat Kerrick, who missed us even though she lives only 32 miles from Fredericksburg. Pat will just have to join us the next time. No excuses accepted! Ginny Poole Kinniburgh sent a note and enclosed snapshots of our meeting and party. I have a goodly number of my own. What a memory table we'll have.

And I had a wonderful surprise recently, a phone call from Dot Reisig. We talked forever, I think. Dot is not well. She has a compilation of problems: m.s. and cancer. But she sounds fine and is doing reasonably well. She is retired from teaching in Asheville, N.C., schools. Hers was the largest choral program in the city. Now Dot has taken on the responsibility of raising her brother's two children, a boy and a girl. How great it was to hear her! We laughed and chatted. It pleased her that Mr. Shnellock's mural in Monroe was preserved; her portrait in a Cavalry uniform is prominent. She was afraid it had gone.

A note to the Alumni Office from "Boot-sie" Raphelia Simpson Johnson reports that they have been in Atlanta 10½ years and that she is working with Lady Love Skin Care. The company sent her to St. Simons Island, Ga., for 1½ yrs. to set up a center there. She seemed to enjoy it. Her daughter, Rebecca, 23, graduated from Baylor University last May and is doing social work in a residential home in Atlanta. Her son, Andrew, is working his way through architecture school by being a waiter at night.

From Linda LeHardy Sweet: Notes from Mary Churchill Huff and Edwina Wright Blankenbaker brightened a very cold January. Mary (Mrs. Walton L., 707 Longview Dr., Sugar Land, TX 77478) wrote that she and her husband have one granddaughter at present. The Huffs have moved often and are now trying to decide where to settle after retirement. To quote Mary, "We may well return to Virginia. We have found no other area to equal the beauty and climate of Virginia."

Edwina is living in Charlottesville. Edwina's address is: Mrs. Walter Blankenbaker, 12 Suffolk Road, Charlottesville, VA 22901.

The unexpected is what makes this job fun! This month, out of the blue, a phone call came from Virginia Thomason Bentley. Ginny and I had been great pals at MWC; and with all the various moves in the years since, we had lost each other decades ago. Ginny began MWC with our class, but by going to summer school, she graduated with the Class of '53. However, we still claim her, and it was wonderful finding each other again.

Ginny and her husband, Edward, who is with Texaco, live in an old farm house which they restored in Chappell Hill, TX (P.O. Box 177, 77426). Their two children are grown: Russell is a petroleum engineer, and Gail is in nurse's training. Ginny promised to come see me next time she gets to the East Coast, which will be soon, I hope.

Helen Roberts McGonegal is in Warren, Va. (Mrs. D.E., Rt. 4, Fincham Ct., 22186) She sent a delightful note catching us up on her busy life. Hennie is now the executive director of Hospice of Fauquier Co., Inc., a volunteer organization caring for terminal patients and their families. Her husband, Don, is with ARC in Gainesville, and daughter, Lori, 26, is a speech therapist. Son, Don, 23, is in his second year of dental school at MCV in Richmond.

Hennie also sent in Nancy Gant Dymment's address, which was great! Nancy, who lives at 301 Woodside Dr., Hampton, VA 23669, attended MWC our first two years. It's nice to have Nancy on the MWC "found" list. Thanks, Hennie.

After years of traveling and moving with the Navy, John and Antoinette Miller Drain seem to have settled in McLean, Va., at 1703 Warner Ave., 22101. At least they have now been there for seven years. Their youngest son, Michael, is in high school; daughter Martha is at Ferrum College; daughter, Anne, is a veterinarian in Georgia; and their oldest child, Rick, is an electrical engineer in Reston, Va. John retired from the Navy four years ago and is with Systems Planning Corp. in Arlington, Va. Toni says she still goes to Navy wives' activities and recently was president of her church women and chairman of a large rummage sale. The Drains are building a cabin in Rappahannock County, a great place to be able to get out into the country and woods. Sounds wonderful!

One great joy for me about living in Fredericksburg has been finding Shirley Gibson Boyd. Shirley was at MWC our first two years and then transferred to Richmond. She has been back in Fredericksburg for the past 12 years where her husband, Bob, is rector of Trinity Episcopal Church. This past summer Shirley and Bob spent a delightful two months on a parish exchange. She said they really felt "at home" living in the village of Seend in Wiltshire just 15 miles from Bath. Their sons, Rob and Scott, joined them for one month, and they all saw a lot of England and Scotland.

From the Eastern Shore comes news of several classmates via Mary Estelle Taylor Martin. All was gratefully received. Mary Estelle writes that Esther Mapp Jacobs Evans now works at the Eastern Shore Public Library in Accomac; Betty Chandler teaches in Chesapeake; Virginia Justice married Dick Johnson, and she works at Nassawadox Hospital. As for Mary Estelle, who got her master's degree last summer, this is her 30th year of teaching! She and husband Philip live at 57 Kerr St., Onancock, VA 23417. Thanks, Mary Estelle.

A letter from Catherine W. Martin Martin arrived the day before the deadline for this column! Perfect timing, Cathy, and your letter was greatly appreciated. She and Edwina Wright Blankenbaker roomed together for sophomore and junior years, and then Cathy spent her last year at medical school at U. Va. She writes, "After graduation I married Earl Martin. We've lived in New Jersey, Ohio, Kansas, South America (Peru), Ohio again, and now North Carolina. Earl is with Kelly-Springfield Rubber Co., and I am doing all of the lab work for Fayetteville Women's Clinic." Daughter, Lisa, is a marine biologist in Jupiter, Fla.; son, Richard, is in the Army; and Russell is in junior high. As Cathy said, they "span all generations!" The Martins' address is 513 Edinburgh Dr., Fayetteville, NC 28303.

From Carol: Did you know that Connie Crigler has her own firm, Crigler Realty Corp., in Alexandria, Va., and is a commercial-investment-exchange broker? She still plays uke! She also skis, plays tennis, travels, swims and is involved in political campaigns. Nancy Hawkins Lockhart's two boys are now 26 and 24. She is finishing nursing school and working for Upjohn! Ann Holcomb is an electron microscopist at Wm. Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak, Mich. She is very involved showing and training her two Gordon setters and one Doberman pinscher and writes articles on the same.

Jeanette Carroll Rothrock lives in Fairfax, Va., and works for the U.S. Dept. of State. Her husband, Thomas, is a judge with the Fairfax County District Court. Their sons are Jefferson, 22, a student at U. Va., and Bradley, 21, attending Virginia Commonwealth.

From Diane: "Red" Rosanelli Metzger represented our class at the festivities for the 75th Diamond Jubilee Anniversary ceremonies. Her son, Joe Jr., was with a small group who had an audience with the pope this past summer in Italy. "Mickey" Foley McDaniel had lunch in Atlanta with Sue Sherriff Ruder. Sue has two sons, Fred, 22, and Lou, 20, and looks great, Mickey says.

I have been exchanging notes with Jane Lloyd, '53. She is on the faculty of Duke University in Durham and is quite a golfer, I hear. She has a new home that I hope to see on my next trip to Clemson. Ann Mitchell Wood and husband, Ted, stopped by in the fall, and we had a wonderful visit. Finally, "Boo" Rountree Duke says she is not missing, but is alive and well in Portsmouth, Va., where she is teaching math on the high school level, plus making a home for her two children, Susan, a sophomore, and John, a seventh grader.

I will graduate in May with my undergraduate degree in social work, finally, 32 years after beginning freshman year with all of you in 1952.

Only two years until our 30th Reunion! Since we are all busy people, please drop a line to one of us.

Christmas news from Betty Rhodes O'Donnell contained a snapshot of her three handsome children: son, Brendan, a student at Conn. College who participated in the 1983 Triathlon in Hawaii; Adrienne, a freshman at Skidmore; and Megan, who is still at home.

I hear frequently from Peggy Gray Williams '58 who, with husband, John, and children, John T. and Margaret, lives in Parksley, Va., in an 18th century house which they moved to a new site. Peggy's home is filled with antiques, and her collection of dolls and old quilts is outstanding.

After a period of 12 years, my former roommate, Susan Bender Trotter, and I got together for a long-promised reunion. We each have a daughter at U. Va. this year. (Martha Trotter, a speech therapy major, will graduate from U. Va., and Insley Pearre, an English and art history major, will graduate from U. Va.) Susan, mother of six, ranging in age from seven to 26 years, is also a grandmother. She conducts quilting workshops in the Richmond area and sees fellow quilting enthusiast, Ann Davis Spivey, quite often.

Peggy Kelley Reinburg, prominent organist, gave a recital and lecture at two locations in Charlottesville last February.

From Frances: Received a letter from Elinor Runge Vitek, our 30th reunion chairperson, who is tuning up for the big moment. Following is her first commercial:

Attention all dollies class fifty-eight Reunion three-oh in eighty-eight

*We're giving you ample notice ahead—
Plenty of time for weight to shed . . .
Faces to lift, hair to tint and
General overhaul for our stint.*

*Some wine and cheese for our first
An informal "do" by the lake or river
Perhaps some jazz and Dixie too
Some toddies or a little brew . . .
A super brunch on Sunday ends a weekend spent*

*With countless friends
We know you can't be dreary frumps
You wild and crazy raincoat bunch.*

*So plan ahead and nudge your pals
Get them crankin' all you gals!
Catch up on the latest drivin'
Let's turn back time and live a little!!*

Elinor's daughter, Vicki, graduated from Florida State in business-hotel management in December. Her son, Brent, is in pre-med at U. Va. on a soccer scholarship.

A holiday note from Ruthie Ridge Griggs: She had lunched recently with Chloe Epes Elmore and Betty Beckham Gentry. She also has seen Alice Cox Garrett, who has five children. Ruthie has taught junior high school for 19 years. Her daughter, Sarah, was to graduate from the University of Arizona in May; and her son, Sammie, from Miami-Dade College in June; and her other son, Charles, is working.

I've been teaching art part-time at York Country Day School and also running my own small business. Our oldest daughter is married and finishing her degree at Princeton. Our second daughter is a junior in architecture at Princeton. Our oldest son is in pre-med at the University of Richmond! I have a second son at home in junior high school.

Please send in news of yourselves. YOU are the ones who make our column interesting. And begin thinking of the 30th reunion. We want a fabulous, record-breaking turnout! As I remember, our class was always good at breaking records!

Edna Gooch Trudeau
Rt. 1, Box 139F
New Kent, VA 23124

Surprise! A letter from Mary Massey. For the past eight years she has been personnel manager at Friends of the National Zoo. She's sent an invitation for any of us girls who are visiting to stop by any weekday. Mary has traveled to Greenland, Iceland and Kenya on wildlife safaris. She has been hiking for many years. Last year saw her in western Canada, and this year she plans to visit Hawaii. She has also decided to return to pipe organ lessons, a hobby she has not pursued in many years.

Ann Brooks Papadatos has tried to stay busy since Nick's untimely death. Gregory joined the Army in September. He was in basic at Fort Benning, Ga., and is supposed to go to Ford Ord, Calif. Anastasia is a freshman at Fordham College, the Rose Hill campus in the Bronx. She loves it! Booksie is taking some credits at Hunter, too, to renew her teaching certificate. She and Anastasia were hoping to come home to Fredericksburg for Thanksgiving holidays.

Dodie Reeder Hrubby's son, Dale, was to start '84 off right by getting married in February. Dodie said that Emily Babb Carpenter's Tom has retired and is working in computers. They are in Springfield, Va. Their son, Tom, attends William and Mary. Stephen and Caroline are in high school.

Dr. Edith Sheppard Ott is now on the Board of Visitors at MWC!

Many newsy notes at Christmas! Beulah V. Springer is still teaching second grade. Hopes to get away this summer for a trip. Phyllis Hartleb Rowley wrote that she, Jim, and the boys had a really good golfing year. Phil, their oldest, played Stanford and the Olympic Club in San Francisco with the family. From there they traveled to Monterey over Easter and played Spyglass. Jim and Phyllis traveled on to the Napa Valley and played several courses there. In June, Jay and Dave competed in the South Florida PGA Sr. Championship in Fort Lauderdale and the Florida State Golf Association Junior Championship at Disney World. They loved Epcot! July found them at Sandpiper Bay, while Phil played in the Florida Open. They saw "They're Playing Our Song" at the Burt Reynolds Dinner Theatre.

From there Jay and Dave traveled to Alabama to compete in the Future Masters, while Phil played in the S.E. Amateurs in Columbus, Ga. Jim and Phyllis went to Knoxville, Tenn., where Phil qualified for the Southern Amateurs. They took sidetrips to Chattanooga, Nashville and Lexington. In between, Dave and Jay enjoyed the tournaments of the Palm Beach Jr. Association. Phil placed fifth in the South Florida Amateurs. Phil, Jim and Phyllis met in Colorado Springs at the Broadmoor, played its courses, and visited with Phyllis' sister in Denver. Then it was on to Salt Lake City and to South Lake Tahoe. Went boating, golfing, and casino hopping. Spent six wonderful days at the Innisbrook Golf Resort in Tarpon Springs while Dave was in the Amateur Junior Golf Classic Tournament over Thanksgiving. Phil likes Stanford and the golf team. Before Christmas the boys will play in the Doral Eastern Jr. Invitational in Miami and after Christmas, the National Father-Son Championship at Atlantis, S.C. Whew! Phyllis, who enjoys her ladies golf events, is co-chairman of the Mixed Sunday Tournaments. Has really worked in her yard this year, and the flowers are magnificent.

Jane Howard Buchanon writes that Susan is a jr. at Wellesley and is spending this year at the Sorbonne. Jane was planning to visit her in January. Jane is 13 and in the eighth grade. She enjoys playing soccer. Katherine, the graduate, lives and works in the Boston suburbs. Elizabeth is 18 and a sr. in h.s. This winter she was to spend nine weeks in Madrid. From Marcia Phipps Ireland: Kent is a sophomore in h.s.; Kris is in her third year at U.Va.; Marcia was chairperson for the Regional Scholarship Committee and again comments that it is a tremendous experience. She said that Marcia Spence Harrison also served.

Speaking of the Regional Scholarship Committee, Julia Coates Littlefield is the chairperson in her area, and Margarie Crisman Kostel will be there, too. Bess is in her second year at William & Mary while working a part-time job. Scott is a sophomore in h.s. and is playing j.v. basketball this year. He has a weekend job as a host at the Lexington Visitor Center. Julia is still editorial assistant for "The Delta," a docent for the Stonewall Jackson House, and is active in her church choir.

Margaret Butterworth Thomas' Holly married in March. Rebekah graduated from the College of Charleston in '82 and has been working in Colonial Williamsburg until recently. Now she is applying to graduate schools and flight attendant schools. "Buttons" keeps busy with an increasing workload as a counselor.

Lois Gaylord Allen wrote that her son, Gene, was in a serious dirt bike accident last year and was laid up until April. He has now made a complete recovery and has returned to playing soccer, etc. Gene is a jr. in h.s. Howard is still teaching, and "Gay" continues teaching adult education and GED government grants.

Would you believe that Irene Piscopo Rodgers has traveled 18,440 miles in the last year on just TWA? She and Don spent two weeks in August in Colorado. She also had the opportunity to bring a friend's daughter to MWC to enroll last fall, which was such an enjoyable trip. She had planned to spend at least 10 days in Florida for Thanksgiving. Her excitement this year—a case of poison ivy and a lost contact lens. Not so unusual? But she lost it the day she was lecturing at Lehigh University. Irene swears everyone in the lecture hall thought she was flirting—due to her unusual eye gymnastics!

Carmen Culpeper Chappell planned to be in Frankfurt, Germany, in March to pick up her new Audi and to spend two weeks in France. Eric loves Colgate. Jennifer is in tenth grade and looking forward to college already. Carmen received her M.S. in archaeology from the U. of Pa.

Priscilla Brown Wardlaw says that Chris is a sr. this year and has narrowed his choices next fall between William & Mary and the U. of Delaware. The Wardlaws toured Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Yugoslavia this summer, but "Pete" remarks there's no place like the good old U.S.A. It was a fantastic trip. "Pete" continues to enjoy her part-time work and her interest in her volunteer opera activities.

Celeste Shipman Kaufman's son, Jeff, is 22 and a sr. at LSU. Tammie is 14 and a jr. in h.s. Julie is 20 and jr. at Auburn. The family planned to spend the week after Christmas in Nassau. They had a wonderful tour in China during the summer.

Eleanor Markham Old is acting director of the Maple Farm Nursing Center. Her hobbies are sewing, making crafts, cross stitching and playing bridge. Arthur is a senior systems analyst at Armstrong World Ind. He is working on his flight instrument rating. Jim is a sr. at VPI and has switched his major to history. He is a member of Delta Upsilon and active in intermural sports. In the summer he stays with Arthur's mother and lifeguards and surfs at Nags Head. Eleanor wrote that Arthur had a great time at his 25th college reunion.

Mary Carolyn Jamison Gwinn is teaching eighth grade in Clifton Forge since the two school systems merged. She has been taking courses for teacher certification and even took a computer course. Cathy continues to play clarinet in the school band, is a member of the school choir, and is thoroughly enjoying school. Burt sold the family business and is now in consulting work. He, too, has been taking some computer courses. In '82 they visited the Tennessee World's Fair, Williamsburg, Baltimore, Roanoke, and many friends and relatives. Last year had been a busy year, too.

Joan Essick Woloson is teaching third grade this year. She is hoping to be transferred next year to fourth grade after the contract disputes are settled. Blake, 21, is attending the U. of Richmond. He is captain of the debate team and is seriously thinking of law studies. He definitely wants a career in government and politics. Wendy is 18 and continues at Iowa State as an art major. Both are having a grand time in school. Kent's law practice keeps him busy. He does find time for golf, tennis, and his antique train and toy collection. The Wolosons spent their vacation in Antigua. Joan had to share her "numero uno" surprise of the year. In October while visiting York, Pa., Kent and Joan and friends were dining, when who walks in the country club complete with navy blazer, SGA armband, devil button, waving an MWC pennant, and carrying her yearbook—Marianne Graves Myers?! This get-together was planned by Joanie's friends and "Fiddle" after they realized they were mutual friends.

Joanie said she ate no dinner and every sentence began with "Do you remember the time . . . ?" It was a wonderful evening and "Fiddle" looks great, as well as her husband, John. She keeps in touch with Karen Broemmer who is still with Bloomingdale's in N.Y. Joanie has spoken with Carol Daehler Leonard and Nancy Crosland Lefeldt.

Yea! A letter from Barbara Gordon Organ. Surprise! She lives next door to Lois Donnelly Clark. Almost roomies again after all these years. In April they had a visit with Gwen Althaus Betor. They all had a good time! Barbara was the team manager for the 1983 Synchronized Swim Team for the Pan American Games. She has been in charge of the U.S. National Team for four years. It's a large responsibility but great fun.

May Philips Slago wrote that she and her sister, Anne, also planned to attend the reunion. May saw Margie Crisman Kostel in the fall. They met at the Farmer's Market and had a lot of fun remembering old times.

From Clara: Let me begin by making a correction. In the last news I wrote that Eleanor Riles Wamsley had undergone laser surgery for cataracts. Her surgery was for glaucoma. Janie writes that her daughter, Annelise, will be attending Princeton in the fall. In February Janie flew to Tampa, Fla., to visit her parents and then went to Louisville, Ky., to give a talk at the Twentieth Century Literature Conference. She expects to complete her dissertation in April.

Constance Booth Logothetis is finding that teaching school full-time is keeping her very busy. She and three other teachers took 52 sixth graders to a conservation school in New Hampshire for a week. During spring break she and her family went skiing.

This past year Jean Ryan Farrell, who lives near Atlanta, Ga., saw three of our classmates. Mattoinette McCeney Campbell was one of them. Last fall Matt moved from Atlanta to Nashville, Tenn. She has a job with the Tennessee Bar Association. Her daughter, Ashley, is a student at the University of Georgia.

Judy LaRoe Hare and Jean got together for lunch. Judy is running her own construction business. She is building some houses near where Jean lives. Of her three children, two are in college.

The third classmate with whom Jean was reunited was Barbara Buse Johnson. Babs had returned to the states after living in England for three years. She is now living in Bowie, Md. Jean saw an article in an Atlanta paper about Sara Prosterman Brown and her work with Yours Truly, a company which sells quilting kits and supplies. If anyone has a copy of this article, please send it to the Alumni Office or to me. I know all of you join me in extending our sympathy to Jean, whose father passed away last September. In Jean's Christmas card to me she included a picture of her handsome family. Two of her boys are in college, and one is in high school.

Last summer Jane Toye Laurson became a grandmother! Her daughter, Laura, had a boy who is named Derek.

Now back to Sara Brown. When she and I were in Columbia, S.C., visiting family during the Christmas holidays, we did manage to get in touch via phone. Her oldest son, Scott, is enjoying his first year at the Naval Academy. Daughter, Cindy, is studying hard at Georgia State; and Randy, who is 15, is turning out to be quite a football player.

In March when I had to change airplanes in Atlanta, I was able to contact Sara on the phone again. It's so good to keep in touch. My trip had taken me to Fort Myers, Fla., where I had gone to visit my aunt who was celebrating her 90th birthday. I met many cousins for the first time and enjoyed the warm weather. My oldest son, Chris, finished his high school football career in a blaze of glory. He was chosen as the most valuable defensive player on his team. Park, who is a high school junior, was a member of his high school's state championship golf team. My musician, Dennis, is enjoying playing the piano with his high school jazz band. He also plays the electric keyboard with the organ sound for our church services. Andrew, 9, is begging for another Mohawk hair cut. For the third year I am chairman of the craft booth for our church fair. I've just completed an adult education class, "How to Run a Craft Business from Your Home." It was very informative and lots of fun. As a member of the committee for selecting the distinguished alumnus and the recipient of the service award, I made a trip to the College. As a special treat, the chairman of our committee, Virginia Poole Kinniburgh '53, arranged to have our lunch served in the dining room of the alumni house. It was a memorable day.

If you are wondering what ever happened to someone you knew at MWC and you would like to get in touch, just write the Alumni Office, Lynn McCarthy, or me; and one of us will be happy to send you that person's latest address. Don't forget to send us your news.

From Lynn: Had a long chat with Lynne Williams Neave in November, just a week before she and Sandy were departing N.Y.C. for a two-week vacation in Australia and New Zealand. Two of Sandy's sons, Peter, 21, and Parker, 19, are now in college—Hartwick and Hobart—both in upstate New York. Sandy is still practicing law, and Lynne is in her 20th year with Pan Am.

Lynne and Sandy keep tabs on Ann Hopkins Burroughs and husband, Dick. "Annie" and Dick came East in the summer of '82 so she could attend her 25th high school reunion in New Jersey, and Lynne and Sandy visited the Burroughses last summer at their home in the Los Angeles area. Dick has his own computer business, and Annie is still into art—works in a gallery. Daughter, D'Arcy, 19, is now in college in Colorado, and Donny, 17, is a high school senior. Then he'll be enrolled in a dramatic arts school in California. He's into "show biz"!

Received a newsy note from Nancy Wright Wright. She's still a high school counselor, loves her job, but really enjoyed last summer off. David, and Brian, Nancy and Grant's two oldest sons, worked in construction this past summer. David returned to Randolph-Macon, and Brian was into high school football and hoped to play tight end. Matt, their youngest, had a big summer, including camp in July and visiting with grandmother in August. Tempus fugit, Nancy!

We're still sending an SOS for lost classmates. If anyone has even a tiny bit of information on them, please take just a minute, and drop us a postcard. We'd sure like to locate them before our 25th reunion. Here they are: Jean Lee "Red" Abbott, Mary Ellen Barrett, Virginia Anne Brown, Rebecca Leigh Butler, Margaret Anne Cook, Julianne Meyerhoffer, Joan Dorsey, Sara Ellen Flowers McKinney, Eileen Marie Foulk, Mary Alice Frey, Shirley Garman Clark, Elizabeth Gill Margolis, Mary Louise Greenfell Colby, Mary Anne Harrison, Mary Jane Hess, Lynn Higgins Brickels, Patricia Marilyn Howard, Tommy Hulcher Thompson, Alice Carol Humphrey Dodson, Nancy Loretta Johnson Jones, Darlene Jane Johnston, Mary O'Neida Saunders, Sally Barlow Smith Miller, Ruth Smits, Ruth Snowden, Jane Snyder Osmon, Anne Carol Stewart, Sylvia Marie Terry Goulding, Charlotte Vaughan, and Beth Wiant Goodlake.

Kentucky's winter was ushered in by a UK roundball victory over Louisville, the inauguration of the Commonwealth's first woman governor, followed by absolutely bone-chilling temperatures and snow, and news from classmates!

Betty Alrich Latta, whom we hadn't heard from in years, surfaced in Los Altos. She and Jerry, who married two weeks after graduation, took their first trip to Europe last summer and celebrated their 22nd wedding anniversary in Paris. Betty is busy with volunteer work in junior and senior high school libraries and teaching art in the elementary schools. Jerry became a V.P. for E.F. Hutton early this year. Their son, Dan, 18, is a h.s. senior, who played varsity water polo last fall and is now on the swim team. Steve, 16, plays varsity basketball, baseball and tennis and was V.P. of his junior class. This summer, he was planning to go to Japan as an exchange student. Jeff, 12, who is in junior high, plays bass clarinet in the school band and also enjoys soccer. All the boys are into computers.

From Stockton, Calif., comes news from Sarah Leigh Kinberg and Tom that they will become grandparents this summer. Son, Tommy, and his wife, Judy, are the proud parents-to-be. Sarah, Tom, and daughter, Sarah Leigh, visited Alaska last summer. Then Sarah continued east to Nags Head and Chapel Hill to visit sisters Margaret and Virginia. In November she and Tom took in the Army-Navy game in L.A. and planned to be with the masses this summer to take in the Olympics.

Linda Lange Senf, of San Rafael, sent a picture of her and the three men in her life—a handsome group. Son Tom was number one in his h.s. graduating class last year and is now at Stanford. Rob, their younger son, lives and breathes tennis and is the number one youth player in their area.

Cards arrived from Prudie Shepard of Sandy Hook, Conn., Jane Hoffman of Richmond, Va., Becky Paris Spetz of Lynchburg, and Gail Warlow Sessions of Woodville, Miss. Gail and T.O. now have three of their children away from home; Andrew, Joseph, and Tommy at L.S.U., Millsaps College, and Woodberry Forest; and three at home; Cathy, David, and Elizabeth. My "little sister," Evelyn Brooke Barnes '62, is still perking along in the D.C. area. Son, Stephen, enters eighth grade in September and is an avid soccer player.

Ann Elekes Nichols, of Slippery Rock, wrote that she and Jack were in San Francisco in late December, where Jack presented a paper at the AHA conference. They'll be in England this summer while Jack teaches at Oxford. Ann continues to manage about four art shows a year. Son John enters the 10th grade this fall and is still tickling the ivories.

Connie Booth Logothetis has returned to full-time teaching—sixth and seventh grade science. She, Andy, and the children, Elaine and Mike, spent a month in Greece last summer. Elaine, a cheerleader and tennis player, will be a junior this fall. Mike, 13, has become the computer expert in the family.

The search for lost classmates continues. Drop us a line if you know where any are or what's happened to them: Deborah Phinney Wylie, Porter Phillips Booker, Rosa Huntley Moffat, Louan Elizabeth Jones Elwell, Elaine Jones Purks, Judy Davis Kennedy Matthews, Fran Lambert, Dorothy Roberts Lay, Lydia Helen Lehto Wallace, Martha Manning Denniberg, Marilyn McAfee, Nancy Clay McClure, Marjorie Cable McGraw, Patricia McKay Barnes, Margaret McMullan Binner, Sarah Belle Merritt, Aundriette Miller Smith, Kathryn Nock Wolk, Anne Francis Oliver, Janice Eugenia Parr, Beatrice Ann Perry, Jane Bryant Redmon, Valerie Gray Richardson, Theo Sammis Bee, Roberta Sardino Rinaldo, Doris Louise Sherman, Kay Skinner Moon, Suzanne Stafford, Elizabeth Stockton Rey, Linda Jo Surrent Cartwright, Dorothy Grace Vodrey Zepernick, Mary Doug Walkup, Mary Bradt Wilson, Linda Anne Wirin Farrier, and Noreen Deland Galvin.

Laura Anne Brooks was the featured soloist at a special program at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Richmond, Va., last winter. She has appeared in concert and opera productions in the Richmond area and in many area churches.

Antoinette Leonard-Matlins, in conjunction with her father, Antonio Bonanno, has written a book entitled, The Complete Guide to Buying Gems: How to Buy Diamonds and Colored Gemstones With Confidence and Knowledge. The book helps to guide consumers to rewarding, prudent purchases of gems. Antoinette's daughter, Dawn-Colette Leonard, was a sophomore at MWC this year.

Frances D. Cook is the new U.S. Consul General in Egypt. She had been named ambassador to Burundi, Africa, by President Carter and was reappointed by President Reagan. She served there until she was named to her new position in Alexandria, Egypt.

From Donna Julian: Mary Page Williams Walden, "Pidge," is now living in a suburb of Atlanta with her husband, Dan, a former Quantico Marine, and children, Katy, 11, and Zack, 7. She is a high school special education teacher and also teaches aerobic dancing.

Dr. Barbara Parmelee Long has joined the faculty at Bridgewater College as chairman of the department of foreign languages and assistant professor of French.

Arena Stone of Gloucester has been named to Outstanding Young Women of America. Her husband, Dr. Kearfoth Stone, is a Gloucester ophthalmologist. They have three children.

Linda Sargent Kaufman and husband, John, have a second child and a first son, William Sargent. They are living in Roanoke, Va., where John practices dermatology.

Carrington Hannah Petras, a teacher in Fort Defiance and Buffalo Gap High Schools in Augusta County, Va., has developed a teaching unit called "Teaching Economic Concepts in the Latin Class." This course won her the $1,000 first prize in a national awards contest sponsored by the International Paper Co. Foundation.

You'll find that, while at this stage in our lives, many of us are into aerobics, school volunteering, and resuming careers; and others are all over the globe with many diverse interests!

My senior suite had a "pre-reunion" in January since Lyn Howell Gray was soon to be embarking for Zaire and her new position as Associate Peace Corps Director there. Lyn and Jim had an exciting year in 1983, too. They adopted Rafael, a native Honduran, who is now 3½ years old, and what a cutie! Just the "girls" got together, however, coming from north and south and meeting outside New York. Ann Simpson Abeille came from Boston and picked up CeCe Smith Riffer in Ledyard, Conn., on the way; Lyn flew up from D.C. Ann teaches educational research on the college level and has two daughters. Of the four of us, Ann made the most of her B.A. in French and married a Frenchman! CeCe and Bill are in Connecticut for about another year, while Bill teaches at the submarine and nuclear power school.

I talked with Jean Polk Hanky after that weekend, and she and her old roomie, Beth Stewart Coleman, were planning to attend the reunion in May.

I appreciated Christmas greetings from Susan Reppert, Lois Fox Kerr, Ann Toms Richardson, and Brenda Franklin. Brenda is director of quality assurance and engineering for the U.S. Navy in Melbourne, Australia. She works with Australian government and industry to produce F-18 fighters.

Brenda reports the following: "Still hear from Dodie Driscoll, Renie Eis, Sharon Wilkins Cockrell, Vicky Silek Hunt, Jeanne Helmandollar Holzmman, and Marilyn Pucillo. All are doing well in physical therapy, medicine, motherhood, husband's business, civil service for the Navy, and teaching, then as travel agent, respectively." Thanks, Brenda.

Laurie McIntosh Bowman '71, an instructor in English at V.C.U., will be teaching next year at the University of San Francisco. Her husband, Phil, will be doing his internship and residency at Letterman Army Medical Center at the Presidio. "Right under the Golden Gate Bridge, the best place in the world," they report.

Laurie's former roommate, Carol Scouten '71, is working for a newspaper in Estes Park, Colo. Laurie also keeps in touch with Connie Hinson '69, an accountant with Life of Virginia in Richmond, and Barbara Bingham '69, who works in public relations for the Virginia State Board of Health and is president of the Richmond Chapter of the MWC Alumni Association.

Ewa Beach, Hawaii, is home for Terry Hall Alford, her husband, who is a Navy commander, and their two daughters.

Good news comes from Mary Lee Stevens Portier, "Stevie," who writes that she and husband Kenneth are the proud parents of a baby boy, Russell Joseph, born Aug. 10, 1983. The Portiers live in Gainesville, Fla., where Kenneth is a faculty member of the University of Florida's statistics department.

Congratulations also to Nancy Baker Dix and husband, Thomas, upon the birth of their second son, Edward Baker, in November. Nancy is busy caring for Ned and his older brother, while Thomas is completing his law degree at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va. Until graduation in May, Nancy and family were living in Buena Vista, Va.

Some personal news from this writer . . . My husband, Craig, daughters, Judith and Anne, and I are enjoying Maine until the summer when we will move back to our home in Connecticut. Craig is executive officer for the nuclear submarine USS Archerfish undergoing overhaul at Portsmouth Naval Shipyard. The duties of a Navy wife and mother fill my days along with volunteer work as a counselor for the Navy Relief Society.

Another MWC graduate and Navy wife lives nearby . . . Sue Ross Wrona '79 and her husband, Ken, are part of the USS Tinosa wardroom, where Ken serves as navigator.

Due to the length of the last column, not all the news from our 10th reunion could be included. To help keep information current, please drop me a line with the most recent news about career, family activities, etc. It's wonderful to hear from each of you!

After graduating from MWC with a major in Spanish, Cathleen Carol Collins taught in a bilingual school in Calexico, Calif., and went on to receive her M.A. in Latin American studies from U.C.L.A. She then became a Latin American analyst at the Defense Intelligence Agency. She is now assigned to the defense attache's office at the American Embassy in London.

Ann Gowen is coordinator of social services at Westminster-Canterbury in Virginia Beach.

Jill Hadden is into politics again. This spring she was a delegate to the city/county Democratic convention. She's been taking drafting classes and spent a good bit of time organizing the '74 reunion.

Hello, '76ers! I received a note from Heidi Klussmann informing me that she moved to Frankfurt, West Germany. She has a sales position in the computer field.

Sue Sendlein Luscomb, on the other hand, just returned to the states after living in Germany. She and husband, Rich, have an infant daughter, Alicia. Rich got out of the Army and is now in private practice in Memphis, Tenn.

Daphne Johnston Elliott called around Christmas. She and John are expecting their first child! Daphne told me that Lucy Dee Kinzey has a daughter named Katherine, and Elaine Porrino Mozur has a son named Stephen. It must be catching!

Hannah Patterson Crew wrote that she is performing with a dance company in Richmond and even has husband, Todd, working backstage with lights. She travels a lot with her job and is involved in Virginia's plans to revitalize the Chesapeake Bay.

Alison Cross Denler sent me notice of the birth of her daughter, Ellen Jean. She loves being at home with her, and John is a devoted father! Alison also said that Karen Sullivan Sutherland had a second baby, a boy named John. Karen and Grant are stationed in Jacksonville, Fla.

Bev Haynes Vaughn '74 sent me a card admitting that this was her 10th year reunion coming up. She and Micki Nunn '74 had planned to attend.

From Austin, Texas, Reggie Tambellini Harbourne told me she and Brian have moved to a nice little house. Now she can have a garden! Mary Carroll Myers and husband, Mark, just finished remodeling their house, and they survived! Mary joined the Junior League in St. Pete and has enjoyed meeting lots of interesting people. Mark works with Florida Power Corp. as an internal auditor.

My husband, Henry, and I went to San Clemente, Calif., to visit Jack and Sally Mize Moore in February. It was a long trip, but it was great to see Sally again. We ate plenty of M & M's and enjoyed the view from their living room. Sunsets over the Pacific are wonderful!

Myra McCord wrote from Stamford, Conn., that she was married to Morris "Mick" Midkiff in April 1983. Mick has his own investment banking firm. He is a marathoner and recently ran in the New York Marathon. Myra is expecting their first child in '84. She is still a product manager at Olin Chemicals. Jan Tucker ran into Myra at a trade show last May.

From Maine, Heidi Klussman wrote that she attended the wedding of Rita Klim '78 and Dr. Gilbert Hardy in Oxford, England. Rita is working on her Ph.D. in biochemistry there.

Reggie Tambellini Harbourne was promoted to department head of physical therapy at her place of work in Austin. All right, Reg!

Sally Mize Moore received a birth announcement from Patty Buckley Wolthuis and Don Wolthuis '77. They had a daughter, Laura, in July 1983. Sally and I enjoyed a day in Fredericksburg before she and her two sons left to join Jack in California. We got a current Framar resident to take our picture there. Corny but fun!

My husband, Henry, and I joined The Falls Church in June. Laura Wilson Huyett '78 and husband, Jay, attend there, too. Small world! Laura just recently had their first child, a son.

Please send me some news so our column will be the longest!!

Beverly J. Haney has opened offices for the general practice of law in Fredericksburg. She received her law degree from U.Va. and was formerly associated with the law firm of Casey, Scott and Canfield, P.C., in D.C.

Shannon Martin Hall is directing the Chesterfield Performing Arts Co., a junior dance company for young people between the ages of nine and 16. She brings to the company extensive experience as a choreographer.

Laura Ann Ewers Cline and husband, Bernie, and two daughters are all very active in the local Fredericksburg Chapter of the MWC Alumni Association. (In Fredericksburg, it's a family affair!) Laura Ann has just been elected vice president of the chapter. Laura Ann's roommate, Lisa H. Lyle, lost her father in April 1983. We extend our deepest sympathies to Lisa and her family.

From Karen Hertzell: I received an informative letter from Connie Whittaker Jett just before the holidays. She wrote that, after four years with United Airlines and a brief stint as a photographer, she returned to MWC as the College archivist. In her spare time she was active in the Fredericksburg Police Department and as a bodyguard for Action Investigative Services in Alexandria, Va. Two years ago, NBC's "Today Show" aired a story about female bodyguards. Connie and two other women appeared in the clip.

Barbara Bryant Zingg married Robert, an old high school friend of Connie's. Barbara has been busy the past few years. She taught for a while after graduation and then accepted a position at Virginia National Bank as a training specialist/coordinator. Now she is managing a music group, the Dixon Line Band. Barbara and Rob have one son, Jason.

Connie also wrote that Ed Brown and Ramona Sinclair Brown '79 are living in Jacksonville, Fla. Ed is an environmental engineer for an oceanography consulting firm, and Moni is a microbiologist for the department of health. She is involved in an infant screening program. Ed and Moni have no children but are raising a couple caimens. (What are they?) Ed's brother, Seth '78, is working on his master's at Georgetown.

Janet Publicover is an accountant for the Smithsonian and is presently living in Woodbridge.

Sandy Hunter became Mrs. Roger Jones last summer and is teaching at Hugh Mercer Elementary School in Fredericksburg.

Congratulations to Nancy Dolan Gorum and husband, Chuck, on the birth of their daughter.

Farhad and Deby Cox Bigdely had a son, Adam Reza, in January.

Cheryl Smith Shiembob, applications research specialist for Life of Virginia, with two colleagues has created a special small computer for the company called the LOV machine. It is designed to help agents present a variety of options to their clients with ease, accuracy and understandability. Cheryl is credited with being the major contributor and creator of the machine.

Sherrie Adams instructed a program at the College of William and Mary this spring entitled "Fitness for Today's Woman."

Cheryl L. Johnston married Michael Bishop-Bailey in 1981. He is a lieutenant commander in the Royal Navy. They live in London, England, with their daughter, Lauren. Cheryl is a field registrar for the University of Maryland at High Wycombe U.S. Air Force Base. She would love to hear from classmates.

I am working at Bionetics Medical Laboratories in Kensington, Md., and my husband, Steve, works for the federal government. Our first child was expected in April. Much of my spare time is spent on activities for the Metro Washington D.C. Alumni Chapter, of which I am vice president. Everyone in the area is welcome to join us.

Linda Stango Paquette, husband, Michael, and daughter, Jackie, visited us this summer. They are still living in Coram, N.Y. Linda keeps busy with Jackie and finds time to work in her pottery shop/studio.

Talked to Cathy Jean Bennett Neff. She and husband, John, live in Gaithersburg, Md.

Pam Brown lives in Annandale, Va., and works for the IRS. I see Pam at the alumni chapter activities.

Bill Christie and wife, Liz '77, live in Alexandria. Bill works for Versar, and Liz is working at the Pentagon. They have a daughter, Erin. Lisa Roberts '79, where are you ????????

Terrie Gladney Howard and her husband, Neil, former MWC assistant professor of dramatic arts, returned to the U.S. in December 1983 after having lived in West Germany for three years. Neil was a Department of Defense civilian employed by the U.S. Army. While in West Germany, they travelled extensively and were able to see most European countries, including a quick trip to London in September 1983 to visit Cheryl Johnston Bishop-Bailey and her husband, Michael, and baby daughter, Lauren.

Terrie, Neil, and son, Andrew, 2½, are now living in Southern California, where they're building a new home in Twenty-Nine Palms. Neil is now employed by the U.S. Marine Corps, again in a civilian capacity, and expected a promotion in April. That's not all: They're expecting their second child in September.

Terrie spoke to Kim Bosco Harding; she and Dave are the proud parents of a baby boy, Philip David, born January 2.

From Shirley Whiteside: Wow! I'm overwhelmed—both by the volume and diversity of your responses. Of course, the most difficult job is editing the news. In an effort to present it all with some consistency, I have chosen a geographic approach.

Gloria Bowman Kuykendall has been teaching school and directing play productions in Fontana, Calif. She and Gary Kuykendall '80 have a daughter, Michelle Lynn, born last year. Pam Reynolds Davenport and her husband, Clark, are living in Orangevale, Calif., with their horse and dogs. Susan Lowe Spence is living in Tualatin, Ore., and working as a financial planning analyst with Pacific Power and Light Co. Susan writes that Kim Coker Samuels and her husband, John, are living in Bremerton, Wash. Seattle, Wash., is home for Liz Greathouse, whose husband, Luke Hill, is a journalist for United Press International. Liz graduated from law school in May '83 and passed the state bar in July. Liz wants all of the old Willard transfers to get in touch.

Dana Perry Gallahan is a chemist at the University of North Dakota Energy Research Center. She and her husband have a two-year-old son and were expecting their second child in March. Wyoming boasts two '79ers: Paul Rinne, who is a physician in Cheyenne, and Sharon Donnelly Bender, who is an elementary teacher in the same city. Her husband, Greg, whom she married in November '83, is in the Air Force there.

Two lucky '79ers are Jenifer Boyd Ross and Juanita Grabarezyk Farmer, who both live in Hawaii. Jenifer is taking pre-nursing courses at the University of Hawaii. She and her husband, Paul, have one daughter, Sarah, 2, and another baby was due in February. Juanita, who received her M.S. in oceanography from O.D.U. in December '83, is job hunting in Honolulu.

There seem to be lots of people that have moved south in each direction. Carolyn Keyser is attending grad school at U.N.C. Chapel Hill. She is studying geography and environmental studies. In Hickory, N.C., is Karen Petere Fritsch, an R.N., whose husband recently emerged from the USMC. They have three children, Noel, 4, Lauren, 2, and Nathaniel, eight months.

After receiving her master's from the University of New Orleans in urban and regional planning, Moirra Carr works as an associate planner with the City of New Orleans Planning Commission.

Mitzi Turner has been practicing law for 1½ years in El Paso, Texas. Her main area of work is civil litigation with an emphasis on personal injury and insurance defense.

Doug Lorber is involved in both audiology and acting in Albany, Ga. He was to perform in the play "Talley's Folly" at Atlanta's Theatrical Playhouse in March.

Randy Kirby completed his master's in divinity in May '82 and is now pastor of Fairfield Heights Presbyterian Church near Birmingham, Ala. His wife, B.J. Miller Kirby '78, is doing graduate work at Samford University.

Katherine Shiflett Anthes is a hall director at Mississippi State University. She is completing a master's in counselor education while her husband, Kris, is completing a degree in landscape architecture and contracting.

Katherine writes that Anne Stockwell Scoggin and her husband, Jeff, live in Richmond. Anne works for Aetna Insurance, while Jeff teaches high school. Judith Bertram '78, who also lives in Richmond, is busy teaching shorthand classes at an area community college and selling Mary Kay Cosmetics. We now also know that Mary Jane Boggio, Suzi Dengler, and Karen Frenz are living together in Baltimore, each working for a different bank there.

Florida is home for other '79ers. Christine Lada Ferguson is a real estate legal assistant in Brandon, Fla. She writes that her job keeps her traveling on a constant basis. Suzy Ward Gardner teaches piano, works as the accompanist for Brevard Community College, and also heads her own church choir. She and her husband, Michael, who works for the Kennedy Space Center as a life support technician, live in Cocoa Beach, Fla., with Michael Jr., who was born in July '83. Suzy writes that Maggie Hoy Ross was expecting in January '84. Maggie and husband live in Fredericksburg where she teaches first grade.

Dede Eckhart Goldman was expecting in June, and Janet Vadeboncouer LaFever is busy with her two-year-old daughter.

Other Floridians include Ramona Brown, a medical technologist in St. Augustine, whose husband, Edwin, is an environmental engineer in Jacksonville. Judy Jackson resides in Tampa, where she is a loan administration officer.

Moving a few degrees north, Caroline Spencer Sutton is a national division officer at First Maryland Bank in Baltimore. Marianne Yarbrough Hicok lives in Olney, Md., and is an administrative assistant for a consulting firm there. She also dances with a modern dance company directed by Kathy Harty Gray. Lesley Abrams Serenyi married Andrew Serenyi in May '83 and is working as a paralegal in Newark, N.J. They reside in Edison. Lesley attended Susanne May Williams' wedding in Wilmington, Del., July 1983.

Felice Wahlberg is teaching history and government in Radcliff, Ky. Interestingly enough, Suzanne Pfaff is marketing computers and computer services to law firms in Cleveland, Ohio.

Sandra Land diGiovanni has been helping in her husband Ernest's film production company in N.Y.C. Presently, she is also taking law courses at Fordham University.

Stephanie Russell Brown and Laurie Dalhouse Saunders live in New England.

Stephanie and husband have purchased and are renovating an older home while she takes classes at Boston Architectural Center. They live in West Hartford, Conn. Laurie and husband, John, live in Boston with their daughter, Ann Henley, born in November '82. John is a management consultant and travels too much for Laurie.

Farther south, Mary Dodrill Reed lives in Munhall, Pa., with her husband, Kevin, and son, Christopher, almost 3. Shelley Roberts is a histotechnologist at the hospital of the University of Pennsylvania. Shelley attended Nancy Quaintance's wedding in September '83 and ran into Gayle Weinberger Petrozino, Lisa Bratton Saltis, Sally Hart, Karin Hedburg and Donna Smith. Audrey Pretlow Mitchell lives in Aylett, Va., and was expecting in January.

As for the Richmond crowd, Chuck Williams completed law school at U.Va. and is working as a law clerk for Justice Poff of the Virginia Supreme Court. Chuck is married to Anne Shumate and also writes that Brian Vella '80 is in his final year at the University of Louisville School of Law. Brian will be moving to Richmond and also working for the Virginia Supreme Court.

Barbara McMahon is living in Richmond and teaching history in Henrico County. Finally, Patricia Bradford Knoop is a computer programmer/analyst. She and husband, Rodger, have bought an older Richmond home and are renovating it.

How about those classmates who still live in Fredericksburg? Marilyn Halasek Lloyd is a mental health consultant who also teaches several courses at Germanna Community College. Dorothea Sponder is in her fourth year of teaching elementary school in Orange County. Sandra Childs is also teaching in the Fredericksburg area, as are Sue Ottinger in Prince William County, and Dawn Anderson in Spotsylvania County. Nancy H. Freeman taught in the area for two years but is now taking care of her four children in Fredericksburg. Anne Griffith Lindsey is currently executive director of Fredericksburg Area Hot Line, Inc., and president of the Fredericksburg Weaver's Guild.

Northern Virginia and its environs seem to be hubs of alumni activity. Margaret Birch is a computer scientist at David Taylor Naval Ship Research and Development Center in Bethesda. Ellen Erskine, who works at the Defense Mapping Agency in D.C., married Keith Littlefield last October. He also works there. Keith received his master's degree in planning at U.Va. in 1981. Betsy Fisher Embrey is teaching at NOVA Community College's Child Development Center. She married Joseph Embrey in April '82. Dorothy Hannum Clinton, who married Andy Clinton in November '83, works in the accounting section of the Fulbright and Jaworski law firm in D.C.

While studying for her M.B.A., Shelley Westebbe supports herself doing free lance research and word processing. Since receiving her law degree from the University of Pittsburgh in 1982, Jan Lutinski is a private investigator in Fairfax. Jamie Boone was planning a February wedding and is an engineering assistant at Dewberry and Davis. Janet Clarke is working on her C.P.A. at night while working as a bookkeeper by day. Therese Donelan was selected as a presidential intern after completing her master's in urban affairs from V.P.I. in 1983. Vickie Harris is an administrative assistant-executive secretary for TOTAL Compagnie Francaise des Petroles, a French oil company in D.C., and is involved in many activities there.

Several '79ers are in the "home" scene. Carolyn Bess Pantzer was a budget analyst at the Pentagon but has opted to raise three step-daughters and one son. Jackie delGallo is raising her three-year-old son in Falls Church, Va., and Karen Baldwin Delling is caring for her one-year-old son after having taught high school French and Spanish prior to his arrival. Finally in the NOVA crowd, Becky Atkinson Jackson is a medical technologist in the lab at Arlington Hospital.

Rounding up this menagerie of class news are the people from "all over" in Virginia. Linda Ridgwell Church is the co-op manager for WFOG radio in Norfolk. She was married in September '82 to Charles Church. Margaret French, who works in ultrasonography and lives in Woodstock, Va., writes that Lisa Chittum Gleixner is living in Roanoke with her husband and daughter, Heidi. While working towards an M.B.A. from Lynchburg College, Rosemarie Kellam Martyn works as a quality control engineer at Babcock and Wilcox in Lynchburg. She married Tom Martyn in May '83. In Williamsburg, Sallie Smith is the assistant women's sports information director at William & Mary. Robin Brown is a licensed Baptist minister and is presently an assistant pastor of Union Baptist Church in Gordonsville, Va. Pamela Geib, who married Barry Pugh in June '82, works as a chemist for A.H. Robins in Richmond but lives in Charlottesville, since her husband is in school there. Pamela writes that Julia Dyer '80 teaches in Albemarle County. Mother is the word describing Evelyn Watts Way. In addition to her son, David Paul, she now has a new daughter, Helen Jo-Ann. Evelyn and her family live near Lake Anna.

Finally, Mary Chilton Fotenos, who married George Fotenos in May '81, was expecting her first child in May and is a kindergarten teacher in Jeffersonston, Va. Likewise, Sharon Renner Johns is teaching in Frederick County, Va. Sharon's daughter, Sarah, was born in November '83. Presently teaching fourth grade in Spotsylvania County, Mary McWhirt Murphy recently completed her first year of graduate work at U.Va.'s School of Education. She and her husband, Michael, have purchased a new home in Orange County, Va.

Thanks again for your response; for those of you who didn't respond, there's always the next issue!

From Barbara Goliash: I was glad to hear from Carrie Winger Tyer, who sent news of her activities as well as those of another classmate, Lisa Derrenbacker. Carrie wrote that she was to graduate from George Mason University in May with a B.S. in nursing. She is interested in women's health care and maternal child health and is very happy with her decision to enter the nursing profession. She was married in June 1982 to Mike Tyer, and they are living in Fairfax, Va.

Another '79 graduate living in the Northern Virginia area is Lisa Derrenbacker, who received her master's degree in education from U.Va. in 1981. She is now working as a sales administrator for a computer systems house in Washington, D.C.

Joelle Williams writes that Pat Ulrich Dodd and her husband, Dennis, are the proud parents of a son, Steven Patrick, born in August 1983. Pat is still teaching in Spotsylvania County.

Lisa Gramp Kirk and her husband, Kevin, are stationed in West Germany. Their son, Matthew, turned a year old in March.

Esta Staples '78 is in the Marine Corps and was stationed in Okinawa, but she should be back in Northern Virginia by now. Joelle herself is still teaching second grade at Misawa Air Base in Japan and is really enjoying it. She says she would love to hear from fellow MWC'ers and can be reached at Box 4418, APO San Francisco 96519.

We also hear from her sister, Ann Ward '83, that Suzy Ward was married to Michael Gardner in September 1981. They have a cozy home in Cocoa Beach, Fla. Suzy and Michael also have an adorable baby boy born in July 1983, who was named after his father.

Keep the news coming!

From Nancy: Rachel Sadrick married Dirk Smith in October in Great Falls, Va. Rachel and Dirk are living in Arlington, Va., and Rachel is working for GTE. Stephanie Amato was planning on being married this summer in Fredericksburg. Anne Hughes is back in school working on her teaching certification. Down South, Roxanne Crespo is studying occupational therapy at the Medical University of South Carolina. Nancy Skinner Woodhouse is also in Charleston working at Litton Bionetics.

Let us hear from you all out there!

From Lori: Kevin and Vicki Reynard Thorne have a beautiful son, Andrew, born Aug. 9, 1983. They are living in Ballston Lake, N.Y., where Kevin, an ensign in the Navy, is stationed; but they will be moving again very soon. Speaking of babies, Katie Kulp Jones and her husband, Dennis, were expecting an addition to their family in April.

John and Bridget Meaney Weaver recently returned to Ithaca, N.Y., after a ski trip to Europe. Bridget is working in the art history department at Cornell University, while John is in his final year at Cornell Law School. This summer they'll move to Old Towne Alexandria, where John has a job waiting for him.

The Weavers aren't the only ones traveling. Jenny Sharp Warthan recently took a week-long break from her studies at Eastern Virginia Medical School to cruise the Caribbean with her husband, Danny.

Lisa Upton moved to Richmond in October to enter Thalhimer's management training program, which she completed in January. Audrey Komito Thomson also has a new address. She and Gordon are now residing in Fayetteville, N.C., where Gordon is stationed with the Air Force, and Audrey is working at a bank.

Karen Snyder wrote to say that she recently got together in Fredericksburg with Nancy McEntyre, Wendy Brown, Ellen Stanley, Charlotte Clare, Patty Churchill, Colleen McCahill and Bobbie Dwyer to celebrate two engagements. Colleen and Dave Turley are planning a summer wedding. Bobbie will be getting married this fall. Karen and Bobbie are both working for Westinghouse in the Baltimore area. Bobbie is also taking graduate classes at Johns Hopkins University.

Navy Ensign Robin Bedingfield is stationed in Rota, Spain.

I am still stationed in Naples, Italy, working as a protocol officer, primarily arranging schedules of distinguished visitors. I'm thoroughly enjoying my tour here. I study Italian; I teach "English as a Foreign Language" to Italians; I've become a fairly serious runner; and I've traveled extensively. Morocco, Turkey, and Gibraltar are just a few of the places to which I've been. I spent Christmas week off the coast of Beirut as escort officer to Bob Hope and his troupe on their USO tour—an experience I'll never forget! Unfortunately, I'll be leaving here this fall.

I've had a couple MWC alumni visit me recently. Barbara Young '80 stopped by for a few days in the fall. She was on her way home after spending four months in Dubayy, U.A.E., working for a hospital administration company. After a few days of nonstop conversation, we headed to Grenoble, France, to visit a mutual friend, Jim Carr, brother of Carin Carr Fernandez '80. Carin was here around the Christmas holidays with her two children, Marina, 3½, and Joey, 1½, and her mother, Janet Abbott Carr '54. Carin came over to meet up with her husband, Jack, a Navy pilot on a Mediterranean cruise. After spending a total of a month in Europe, Janet was back in Arlington, Va.; and Carin and the kids were back in Virginia Beach, Va., anxiously awaiting Jack's return.

I'm hoping to hear from a lot more of you soon!

Well, my news is a little sparse this time. It seems like everyone is getting into the business of being professionals, grad students, marrieds that they don't have the time to write me. I'm just lucky I write this thing because I probably would never get around to dropping a line to the poor class agent either or something like that.

O.K., on to the happenings of the Class of 1982. First, apologies to Sue Watkins Harkrader—geez—I seem to have a horrendous problem with my spelling. Hope you're enjoying life as Mrs. Harkrader, Sue!

Melissa Anne Betak and Gary Webb were married June 4, 1983. It was a real MWC wedding with both the bride and groom being alumni. Other MWC alumni in the wedding were Carolyn Betak '84, Terrene Lynch '82, Mark Madigan '81, and Richard Evans '82. Gary is now in law school at the University of South Dakota, and they are living in Vermillion.

Kathy Pike was to be married in April.

Debbie Rutledge is working for Sovran Bank in Richmond.

Torie Hampshire was to be married in May and to start veterinary school at the University of Pennsylvania in the fall.

Terri Banta received her master's in speech pathology from M.C.V. in May.

A few new people have clued me in to what's up in their lives. Jeff Bowen moved to Arlington last April and is working as a consultant to ALM, Inc., a laser manufacturer. He sounds great and frequently bumps into other alums living in the area.

Houston Kempton and Tonie Van Dam are keeping each other company in Boulder, Colo., these days. Tonie is working on her Ph.D. in geophysics at the University of Colorado—how ambitious can you get!? Houston is enjoying Colorado (especially at snow time) and is working part-time driving a Zamboni. A what, Houston? You know, that little machine that smooths ice in skating rinks. At any rate, it was great to hear from you both, and I hope that you'll come back East for a visit.

Deb Reid is finishing up her teaching certification and is working at West Springfield High School (a hop, skip, and a jump away from my house!). She's still coaching, too. Good to know!

Diane Noles is busy working in the technical department of a paper mill, doing some computer work there, and taking classes at Old Dominion University for a master's in geography. Doesn't sound like you have enough to do, Diane!

Tara Corrigall is studying to be a broker at E. F. Hutton. When Tara Corrigall studies, people . . .

Her old pal, Vickie Haynes, continues her job at the CIA and, from what I understand, is doing well—no great surprise.

More wedding announcements. Erma Ames is engaged to be married to Brian Baker, another MWC alum. Gay Groves had set a May wedding date. They are sure to be happy and radiant brides. Speaking of which, Terri Torri and John Hoffman are also working heartily in that direction. John has got a master's to finish before then, though, in American Studies. No pressure there, John. I am happy to report that Cindy Field Blythe and her husband, Rob, are enjoying married life and have set up house in Texas where they spent their first Thanksgiving with Mary Pat Wolfington. Remember Mary? Mary spent her first two years at Mary Washington before moving on to St. Joseph's in Philadelphia.

Trenda Powell Jacobs just got another promotion with the World's Fair. So what else is new? She did a lot of traveling this summer on business, N.Y.C., Chicago, Hawaii. What a rough life!

At least one of our MWC grads completed his master's in December. Mike Bennett has an M.P.A. (That's Public Administration.) He's getting his pinstripe suits and attache case in order for the "REAL world" as an analyst for Banker's Trust in Manhattan. Congrats, Mike!

Speaking of school, I did find out where Annmarie Cozzi is studying law. She's at the University of Richmond along with Liz Corr, who, rumor has it, will also be marching down the aisle one of these days. How about confirming that, Liz?

Shannon McGurk is soaking in the Army experience in West Germany. He's done a lot of traveling so far, is trying German food in his spare time, and, of course, must be writing heaps about the experience.

Tim Pierpoint has held off on grad school for awhile and is looking for work in D.C. with a temporary job here and there to hold him over. Jim is really enjoying the University of Georgia and is considering communications law as a possible career.

Joe Campbell is down in Georgia working on a degree in student administration with thoughts of going all the way for a doctorate.

Debbie Rutledge is in Richmond, living with Barb Balogh '83, and working in the international department of First and Merchants.

Jenny Stone is also, as far as I know, in one of their Richmond branches.

Joanie Anderson is reported to be living in Springfield! Sharing a townhouse with Cinda Sheehan's sister. But what are you doing, Joanie? And how about Cinda? Let me know.

Jackie Tanous has started with a new advertising agency. She really seems to be enjoying it and manages to juggle that with her duties as a member of the Alumni Board of Directors.

Kathleen Downes is taking a graduate class at George Mason in public administration, somehow managing to balance that with her 9-5 job, aerobics, Sunday School teaching . . .

I am plugging along, also teaching Sunday School and taking Portuguese lessons, which are fun.

Erin Devine is also continuing with law school, getting some clinical experience.

And Barb Cahill has commenced studying at a law school in New York, a much deserved activity after her efforts. Her old roomie, Rosann Sedlacko, has also started busily banking in the N.Va./D.C. area!

Well, that's it for now—I've neglected many of you here. I hope that you will write me, so that next time I'll take up gads and gads of paper in this magazine.

Greetings, Class of 1983!

It is hard to believe that it has already been one year since our graduation from Mary Washington College. I was on campus recently, and it felt strange not to see all of your familiar faces. The first year out in the real world has brought many changes to our lives: new careers, new surroundings, and matrimony for many classmates. Here is the latest scoop on all of the activities of the Class of 1983.

I have several weddings and engagements to report. Jayne Daggett to Martin McGinn last August, Betsy Fruit married Bob Schai-ble Sept. 24. Diane Hill was wed to Michael Frazier on Oct. 29, and Beth Young to Tom Strange on Jan. 7. Susan Sneider married Barry Harlowe last August, and Jennifer Lee Benner was wed to J. Andrew East last December. Jennifer and her husband are now living in La Paz, Bolivia, where her husband works for the State Department. Ann Marie Smith was wed to William Mattingly on Feb. 25. They are now living in Idaho, where Bill is an ensign in the Navy.

Excitement is in the air as more engagements are announced and more weddings are planned. Plans are in the making for Andrea Kocolis and Neil Hartung. Elden Legaux and Perry Roberts were married April 28. Wendy Burnette and John Dickin-son look forward to an Oct. 6 wedding, and Elizabeth Sullivan and John Kling have set their date for a September wedding.

Now on to some more updates on the class. Sarah Thompson, Stacey Nickerson and Jane Feeney are all living in Boston and are loving it. Sarah is working on her master's degree at Boston University. Stacey Nickerson is also at Boston U. in divinity school and looks forward to her ordination as a minister in the Methodist church. Jane Feeney is working at Filene's Department Store as a manager of the first floor.

Susan Leavitt is living in D.C. and working at Abercrombie and Fitch after extensive travels in Mexico during the summer.

Dave Peterson is in his first year of medical school at Medical College of Virginia. He is on a Navy scholarship and is the president of his class.

Terry Daley is also at M.C.V., in nursing school.

Paul Pittelli is at Penn State, pursuing his master's degree in math.

Kellee Green is working on a cruise ship, dancing in the nightly shows. It's life aboard the "Love Boat" for Kellee.

Patsy O'Connell is way out in Texas at Baylor in dental school.

Joe Davoli is at the University of Richmond, in the T.C. Williams School of Law.

Victoria Via is working for Piedmont airlines as a flight attendant.

Kitty Hahn is continuing her studies at Union Theological Seminary in Virginia, where she is enrolled in the doctor of ministry program. She is also a student minister at Calvary United Methodist Church in Richmond, Va.

Barbara Balogh is a paralegal with Sands, Anderson, Marks, and Miller law firm in Richmond. Barbara spent a summer in paralegal school in Philadelphia and now resides with Debbie Rutledge MWC '82.

Susan Kushmieder is busy working for the Children's Hospital National Medical Center in the speech and hearing division. She is also pursuing a master's degree in speech pathology at the George Washington University.

Jackie Lane, Lindsley Bruch and Janet Epling are all working at Systems Development Corp. in Fredericksburg, where they have also taken up residence.

Martha Newcombe, who shares an apartment with Jackie, is currently employed at the Bank of Virginia.

Cindy Peilter Riemsel is a technical writer for Sperry Univac in King George, in addition to being a newlywed.

Ann Clark is a programmer for SYSCON Corp. in King George, and she commutes from Fredericksburg.

Dave Morris is also making the same commute to King George, where he works at Comtek Research.

Cindy Gregston teaches music on the elementary school level for Fairfax County Public Schools.

Lynn Zierniki works as a computer programmer for Sperry Univac.

Karen Carra lives in D.C. and is on the staff of National Micrographic Systems in Silver Spring, Md.

Martha Weber is a technical editor for Vitro Corp. in Silver Spring, where she also lives.

Myrtle Buchanan is working as a travel agent in Fairfax, Va.

Regina Perry works at Obeci Hospital in Suffolk, Va., and is taking graduate courses at Old Dominion University.

Susan Snearer Harlowe is a program analyst for the Department of the Navy.

Annette Lenz is a lab technician for National Health Labs in Vienna, Va.

Well, that is all of the news that I have for now. Please drop me a line, and let me know what you are doing. I can't include you in the news if I don't receive any information. Please send all news to the above address. Look forward to hearing from all of you!
